Senators Snort Over Car Pact

We Wouldn't Dare!

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States Senate Thursday approved the auto-production agreement with Canada but only after narrow defeats to two moves to delay it.

The vote was 54 to 18 in favor of the agreement signed last January by Prime Minister Pearson and President Johnson. Amendments to put off implementing the agreement were defeated by margins of 43 to 32 and 40 to 34.

The bill now goes back to the House of Representatives, which passed it earlier, for consideration of amendments attached by the Senate. If the House balks at the changes, the bill will go to a committee for an attempt at evolving a compromise.

The margin of resistance to the bill, which had been opposed mainly by three Democratic senators, was a surprise to the administration. President Johnson had made the measure a "must pass" item.

Earlier, Democratic Senator Abraham Ribicoff said Canada "would not dare enter a trade war with the United States."

"Canada needs the U.S. a lot more than the U.S. needs Canada in trade," the Democratic senator said in resuming opposition to the proposed Canada-U.S. auto agreement. "I think the state department takes us for a bunch of chumps—I'll put it as bluntly as that." Ribicoff said the state in the third day of debate on the agreement. He said it weakens the U.S. position in tariff-cutting talks at Geneva and invites a more trade restrictions.

He was replying to a standard argument put by the U.S. government in supporting the auto pact—that it

U.S. Beefs Up Viet War Reserve Army

WASHINGTON (UPI)—U.S. Defence Secretary McNamara has announced a plan to bring 145,000 National Guardsmen and civilian reservists to a state of readiness to fight in Viet Nam if their units are called up.

To do so, he dissolved 751 army reserve units containing 55,000 men. The secretary has contended in the past that some reserve units are obsolete, unneeded and wasteful, and that their men should be available where they are needed.

PRIORITY OUTFITS

McNamara said none of these units is required for "contingency war plans," and that trained personnel from them now can join high-priority outfits which are needed. Furthermore, their dissolution will reduce the recruit training load on army camps which now are overburdened with the huge Viet Nam buildup.

In effect, what McNamara did was to push ahead with a plan which Congress refused to approve under his proposed merger of the reserves and the National Guard.

Chou En-lai:

China Needs More Time

PEKING (Reuters)—Premier Chou En-lai Thursday praised the achievements made by China under 16 years of Communist rule but said the country needs at least another 20 years to become "truly strong."

Speaking at a huge banquet on the eve of the 16th anniversary of military victory in China's Communist revolution, Chou said the country is experiencing a new all-round upsurge in industrial and agricultural production, and looks forward to an "infinitely bright future."

He quoted a cautious statement by Communist Party Chairman Mao Tse-tung saying China is somewhat stronger than before.

NOT VERY STRONG

"But it is still not very strong, and we need to build it for another 20 or 30 years at the least, in order to make it really strong," Chou said.

Mao Tse-tung did not make any public address Thursday night. Chou attacked the United States for "imperialist policies of aggression and war." And he hit out at Soviet "modern revisionists."

Sukarno Survives Indonesian Coup

TOKYO (UPI)—A colonel of the Indonesian palace guard announced over Radio Jakarta today that he had arrested leaders of an attempted coup against President Sukarno and put the top leadership of the country under protective guard.

The Japanese foreign office reported that Japanese Ambassador Shizuo Saito cabled from Jakarta that 20 military officers were under arrest this morning and that the presidential palace was under heavy guard.

Presses Case to Powers

India Adamant Over Kashmir

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—Indian Foreign Minister Sardar Swaran Singh Thursday began trying to convince the Big Four powers that his government would not yield in its Kashmir dispute with Pakistan.

Informed diplomatic sources said Singh made three points: India is willing to honor the UN-ordered cease-fire but insists that it will not carry out a unilateral observance of it.

India is willing to accede to the council resolution calling for withdrawal of all armed personnel to positions held on Aug. 5, when hostilities erupted, but will do so only if Pakistan acknowledges responsibility for "irregular" infiltrators as well as its uniformed forces.

India, admittedly reluctant to discuss a political settlement of the Kashmir question which could reopen the issue of whether the disputed former princely state is indeed part of the Indian union or has the right to accede to Pakistan—will not do so under any circumstances until the ceasefire and withdrawal provisions are fully carried out.

From China With Love

HONG KONG (Reuters)—Communist China announced Thursday it has ordered its artillery forces to suspend its shelling on odd days of the Chinese Nationalist offshore islands of Quemoy, Taitan and Erhshan on Oct. 1 and 3. This is to allow people on the islands to celebrate the 16th anniversary of the founding of the Chinese Communist Republic, the New China News Agency reported.

Coleman

HAYNEVILLE, Ala. (UPI)—An all-white jury acquitted a special deputy of a civil rights slaying Thursday but Alabama's outraged attorney-general said he isn't through with the case yet.

The official, Richmond Flowers, said the acquittal of 32-year-old Tom Coleman represented the "democratic process going down the drain of irrationality, bigotry and improper enforcement of the law."

CHICAGO (UPI)—A priest who was wounded in an Alabama civil rights campaign says the acquittal of the man accused of shooting him and killing a companion does not "square with the facts of the case."

The Rev. Richard Morrisroe issued a statement through a friend from his bed in Oak Park Hospital.

"It is hard for him to understand why the court did not grant a continuance so he could testify," said the Rev. Thomas McDonough, a friend.

Coleman was charged with first-degree manslaughter in the Aug. 20 shotgun slaying of Jonathan Daniels, 26, a white Episcopal seminarian student from Keene, N.H.

HALT COURT The American Civil Liberties Union in Washington asked Supreme Court Justice Hugo Black to halt all court proceedings in Lowndes County, where Coleman was tried, pending a hearing on ACLU charges that Negroes and women are excluded from the county's juries.

Integration leader Dr. Martin Luther King said the verdict made it "obviously clear that federal anti-lynch legislation must be passed."

JURY SYSTEM The nation's attorney-general, Nicholas Katzenbach, commented that such verdicts "are the price you have to pay for the jury system."

Firemen Frustrated

After All That Patient Paid Bill

DETROIT (AP)—It might have been a rerun of an old Keystone Kops movie.

Fire Squad No. 2 answered a call Wednesday to aid a man having trouble breathing. Arriving at the man's rooming house the squad left one man in the truck and rushed to the elevator.

The elevator stuck between floors. The truck driver rushed into the house to free the elevator. The squad found their patient and put him on the stretcher—in time to hear someone drive away in their truck.

While the police were recovering the truck about one-half mile away, the rescue squad took their patient to the hospital in a cab.

The patient paid for the cab.

Action Needed For Education

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—The federal government must do more for education, Prime Minister Pearson said Thursday night.

He told a Liberal rally here that the present federal aid of $400,000,000 a year "is not going to be enough."

"Every boy and girl must be given access to every type of education as far as he or she can go," the prime minister said.

"This must be done." The federal government would have to discuss the matter with the provinces, which have the primary responsibility for education.

"We're going to have to do more to fit young people to take their place in the world," Mr. Pearson said.

A few minutes after his 40-minute speech, he met a delegation of voting-age students from Memorial University here concerning the Nov. 8 federal election in which many students will be unable to vote because they have not been in university residence long enough this year to qualify. They will have to return to their home towns if they want to vote.

Truce Terms Ignored

NEW DELHI (AP)—India and Pakistan accused each other again Thursday of violating the week-old United Nations ceasefire along the frontier of the Indian state of Rajasthan.

The Indian defence ministry charged 500 Pakistani desert rangers attacked across the frontier and they were being reinforced.

A Pakistani government broadcast said India threw two battalions against a Pakistani post in Rajasthan Thursday and the fighting was continuing. It said heavy casualties were inflicted on the attackers.

Rajasthan is a wild desert area at the southern section of the India-Pakistan border. Indian officials termed the situation serious.

Bishops Urge Papal Ruling In Birth Control Controversy

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—Roman Catholic leaders have urged Pope Paul VI to settle a split in the Ecumenical Council by ruling on the controversial problems on birth control before the assembly ends.

ignoring the already big problem."

He warned that if the council haltingly broaches this matter before the Pontiff speaks out "the faithful will think they have been defrauded." He said it was unwise for the church to claim infallibility if it cannot even make up its mind on a matter of morals and faith.

LIBERAL VIEWS

In an eloquent defence of the dignity of conjugal love, Bishop Remi de Roo of Victoria went as far as any speaker has dared on the council floor in urging a new look in the church's views.

"Spouses must never abstain from constant development of authentic, conjugal love and its practice," he said. "Arbitrary

Police Seek Pair

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police Thursday described one of two persons who escaped from the provincial mental hospital at Essondale as extremely dangerous and perhaps armed.

They said Peter William Harrison, 26, of Vancouver was transferred to the hospital from B.C. Penitentiary Aug. 4 after being declared mentally disturbed by a medical and psychiatric team.

He escaped from the hospital Wednesday with a 16-year-old Prince George juvenile.

The pair used an electrical cord to slide down from a third-floor window, then stole a sports car.

ROAD BLOCKS
Road blocks were set up throughout the province by RCMP.

Police said Harrison was serving 10 years for armed robbery and false pretences. He has a record of convictions for armed robbery, theft and burglary dating back to 1954. In 1959 he was sentenced to nine months for escaping jail and car theft.

The juvenile was committed to the hospital by order-in-council after a conviction following a shooting incident in Prince George.

Missing Man Hatched Tow

VANCOUVER (CP) — A man missing on a fishing trip in a 14-foot boat out of Horseshoe Bay in West Vancouver turned up in Victoria Thursday.

G. R. Rosser, 36, of West Vancouver, told his wife by phone that his boat had run out of gasoline Wednesday. He hitched a lift on another boat which took him to Victoria.

Birth Control Ruling

norms drawn from external considerations have little value in this domain.

The Canadian said the church's "vital framework of laws must not inhibit the full development of Christian marriage in all its dimensions."

The opposition to such liberal views was staunch.

"It is offspring which determines the essence of marriage — all the rest is secondary," said Ireland's Michael Cardinal Browne of the Roman Curia.

Indonesia's Archbishop Adrian Djajasapetra of Jakarta said:

"Nowhere in theology can we find any justification for outlawing married couples to determine on their own responsibility the number of their children. Such terminology is premature and favors modern hedonism."

William Cardinal Conway of Armagh, Ireland, took a middle position, saying married couples should have the right to determine the number of their children "by methods in conformity with the law of God."

Much of the wrangling arose from the careful avoidance in the marriage and family statements under debate of any allusion to birth control which could have compromised Pope Paul's eventual decision. The Pontiff has preserved the matter to his own decision and has asked a special commission to report to him. There has been no indication of when he will speak out.

Last June the Pope said the special commission was expected to complete its work shortly and then he would give the pronouncement.

Your Good Health

Flabby Figure Can Be Trimmed

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD
Dear Dr. Molner: Why is it so difficult, if not impossible, for me to regain my figure?

I have had five children, ranging from six years to four months, and have been exercising nearly every day now for nearly three months.

The results are not startling. I don't have a weight problem, although I do have five more pounds to lose to get back to normal. It seems my entire middle, from midriff to lower abdomen, is nothing but a mass of flab.

I'm so discouraged. Is it possible to get all those muscles nice and tight again, or should I just resign myself to a middle-aged figure at the age of 30?

MRS. J.W.

A good deal of getting your figure back depends on what happens before the baby arrives. That is, don't put on too much weight during pregnancy. A maximum gain of 20 pounds is a good rule to follow. For a woman who is overweight to begin with, a somewhat smaller gain is reasonable.

GAINED TOO MUCH

If after three months of exercises, you still have five pounds to shed, it's evident that you gained too much. So get rid of the five pounds. Some of the excess weight is in that midriff flab.

You may not get back to the figure you had at age 20, but you can do some further improving.

After all, you've had five children in six years, and that hasn't given you much time to get your figure back in shape. There are mothers who have very good figures and have had more babies than that, but usually you'll find that they had more recovery time between pregnancies.

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband had a prostate operation about three years ago. He feels all right but has very weak kidneys and has to urinate quite frequently. What is your advice?

W. W.

He should consult a urologist. Frequency and difficulty in retaining the urine are common after this surgery. However, certain exercises to strengthen control will help. After three years, it might be too late to expect the best results, but it is worth trying.

(It doesn't mean anything is wrong with his kidneys; the trouble is in controlling flow from the bladder.)

Racial Death At Bar

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Several inter-racial homicides, some of them directly linked to racial demonstrations, have reached the trial stage in the southern United States in the last decade.

Among them were:
Sept. 1, 1955—Emmett Till, 14-year-old Chicago Negro, was seized from a relative's home in Leflore County, Miss., and slain. Two white men were tried and acquitted in a case that evoked civil rights demonstrations.

April 19, 1962—Leslie Lee Luttis, 16, white, was shot to death during racial troubles in Augusta, Ga. six Negro youths were convicted and sentenced to prison for terms ranging up to life.

March 23, 1963—Mrs. Johnnie Mae Chappel, 35, Negro, was shot and killed in Jacksonville, Fla., during racial demonstrations. A white man, J. W. Rich, 22, was sentenced to 10 years for manslaughter, and charges against three other men were dropped.

June 12, 1963—Medgar W. Evers, 38, Negro, field secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People in Mississippi, was killed from ambush at his home in Jackson, Miss. A white man, Byron de la Beckwith, was charged but two trials ended with hung juries.

Sept. 15, 1963—Virgil Ware, 13, Negro, was shot to death in the riotous aftermath of a Negro church bombing that killed four girls in Birmingham, Ala. Two white youths were charged with second-degree manslaughter, and were released on probation.

July 11, 1964—Army Lt.-Col. Lemuel B. Penn, Negro, of Washington, was killed by shots from a passing car while driving near Colbert, Ga. Three Ku Klux Klan members were indicted; two were acquitted and the third not tried.

March 25, 1965—Viola Gregg Luzzo, 39, white, of Detroit, was killed while ferrying Negro demonstrators back to Selma, Ala., after a march to Birmingham. Three men were charged with killing Mrs. Luzzo, but only one has come to trial and that case ended in a hung jury.

Aug. 29, 1965—Johnathan M. Daniels, 27, an Episcopal (Anglican) seminary student from Keene, N.H., was shot to death in Hayneville, Ala. A Roman Catholic priest was injured. Thomas L. Coleman, 55, part-time deputy sheriff, was tried and acquitted of manslaughter Thursday.

partment engineer who helped out with police matters, still must stand trial on assault charges for the wounding of Daniels' friend, Rev. Richard Morrisroe of Chicago, a Roman Catholic priest who was cut down by gunfire in the same incident.

LEGAL STUDY
An aide of Flowers said the attorney-general was "researching" the case to determine whether any further "legal routes are available."

"The attorney-general is not through with this case yet," he said.

Coleman could have been sentenced to up to 10 years in prison in the Daniels case. He could draw a year's term for the assault on Morrisroe.

APPEALING
Flowers said that "what happened this week in Hayneville does not do justice to Alabama. What has happened is appalling."

"Now those who feel they have a licence to kill, destroy and cripple have been issued that licence. It is out duty to do what is necessary to retrieve it."

CALLoused

"I firmly believe that the great majority of Alabamians are outraged by this calloused disregard for the taking of a human life in the enforcement of the law," Flowers said.

Coleman's wife broke into tears when the verdict was announced. "I knew it all the time," she said, tears running down her cheeks.

The Rev. John Morris of Atlanta, chairman of the Episcopal Society that sent Daniels to Alabama to do civil rights work, left the courtroom shaken.

little emotion throughout the trial was less demonstrative. "I'm happy," he said chewing on a wad of gum.

China Spouts Hard Policy

Surface To Air Missile?

SAIGON (AP)—A U.S. pilot was reported missing Thursday after his plane was shot down over North Viet Nam by what officials believed to be a surface-to-air missile.

In Washington, Defence Secretary McNamara told a press conference it is "not yet certain" that the plane was downed by one of the missiles in North Viet Nam. It would be the fourth U.S. aircraft loss to Soviet-built missiles.

Military sources in Saigon said the North Vietnamese had increased the number of missile sites in recent months and frequently moved them from one site to another.

However, there was no indication that the number of Soviet-made S.A.M. missiles available to the North Vietnamese had increased to any great extent.

Congress Approves New Immigration Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Congress gave swift final approval Thursday to the immigration reform bill. President Johnson announced he will sign it into law Sunday at the foot of the Statue of Liberty in New York harbor.

The president will be in New York Sunday and Monday to attend a United Nations dinner and to meet with Pope Paul. He added the Statue of Liberty trip to his plans late Thursday.

The measure, effective in 1968, carries out the central objective of the White House plan by wiping out the long-agency reported his speech in a broadcast monitored here.

Chou's speech, at a reception yesterday, followed the tone set by foreign minister Marshal Chen Yi in an unprecedented press conference Wednesday reported today in Japanese newspapers.

READY TO REPEL
Chen warned China was prepared to repel any invader, including the United States.

"We will wipe them all out," Chen said in the bluntest remarks expressed so far by a Peking official.

Chou said Red China would never retreat from its militant ideological stand in international affairs "whatever storms may arise on the international scene and however much the U.S. imperialists and their partners may curse and threaten us, even to the point of imposing a war on us."

Eumenical Council

'Deicide' Term Out?

VATICAN CITY (CP)—A revised declaration on Jew-dropping the word deicide and for the first time specifically condemning anti-Semitism—went to the Vatican eumenical council Thursday.

It brought the prospect of more battles before a final showdown vote, due in two or three weeks.

CANNOT BE BLAMED
Despite the deletion of deicide (God killing), the text still declares the Jewish people cannot be blamed for the crucifixion of Christ.

The revised text deprecates anti-Semitism by name, while the earlier version did not.

Amid the intense emotion generated by council debate

BOUGHT END
Many of the 2,200 bishops at the council, particularly among the U.S. hierarchy, wanted an unmistakable reference to end the ancient charge of deicide.

Objections came from among conservative prelates and bishops from the Middle East.

It brought the prospect of more battles before a final showdown vote, due in two or three weeks.

Bit of U.K.

Customs Will Remain

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—The British heritage will be maintained in Canada, Prime Minister Pearson said Thursday night at a dinner given by the Liberal party of Newfoundland.

"Newfoundland is rightly proud of its old traditions and its British heritage," he said.

UNITED COUNTRY

"This heritage and these traditions are going to be maintained—as they should be—in a strong and united Canada."

"You can look forward to the Canadian future without forgetting or betraying in any way the Newfoundland past. Anyone who tells you otherwise you can dismiss with contempt."

MAPLE LEAF

"Indeed, in every part of Canada, we honor the Canada of our ancestors but we build for the Canada of our grandchildren. This is as it should be."

"This is one reason why Parliament adopted the red maple leaf flag as the distinctive flag of Canada. I am proud of that flag and all that it stands for in our country and in the world."

Mr. Pearson also said it is not going to be easy for the Liberals to win a majority in the Nov. 8 election.

If 'Reasonable' Plan

Doctors Back Medicare?

VANCOUVER (CP)—The president of the Canadian Medical Association says 95 per cent of Canadian doctors will support a "reasonable" national medicare scheme.

"But we don't want to be locked into a hasty scheme which may deteriorate and from which there is no escape," Dr. Frank Turnbull of Vancouver, said in a panel discussion at the British Columbia Hospitals Association convention here Thursday.

DOCTORS BLAMED
Another panel member, E. P. O'Neal, secretary-treasurer of the B.C. Federation of Labor, blamed doctors and private insurance companies for delaying a national medicare plan.

Mr. O'Neal said many doctors "have lost sympathy with the people they purport to serve; they resent the idea that they may have to collaborate in somebody getting something for nothing."

WILL CO-OPERATE
Dr. Turnbull said that "unfortunately medicare has become a political commodity."

"The Canadian Medical Association takes the position it will co-operate with, or assist, whatever is instituted by a government elected by the people. But doctors also insist they have the right to protect their patients and themselves."

BIG MISTAKES
He said universal medicare would bring a chance of catastrophic mistakes—that widespread, rapid introduction would bring a tremendous demand for services with which doctors probably couldn't cope.

Dr. Turnbull said doctors agree that financial assistance should be provided for indigents and those who can't afford to participate in voluntary medical plans.

"But it is not necessary in Canada to provide assistance for everybody. I don't believe the government should undertake to do for people what they can do for themselves."

Mr. O'Neal said: "If they (doctors) really were concerned with the well-being of our people, regardless of their social standing, the medical profession would be in the vanguard of the fight for universal health services."

Of Two Evils

THE CYNICS for some time have been suggesting that the Liberal Party called the general election at this time because it felt that after this fall the economic expansion would lose its impetus.

The danger of putting the Rivard and other scandals to the voters could have appeared less than that of waiting for a possible down-turn in Canada's trade and employment figures.

Some strength may be given these views by the national accounting for the first six months of 1965. These show that Canada's current accounts deficit is running at $757,000,000, or 57 per cent higher than a year ago at this time.

This situation may be improved in the second half of this year as the movement of grain to Russia gets under way, but the fact remains that Liberal government policy is apparently unable to rectify the serious imbalance of trade between this country and the U.S.

A year ago Canadian exports exceeded imports by $185,000,000. This year there is a deficit of $75,000,000 mainly from U.S. trade.

The total imbalance with the U.S. of $1,200,000,000 was offset by a favorable balance of $369,000,000 from other countries, a topsy-turvy state of affairs that does little to improve our general relations with Britain, Japan, China and other nations with whom we do valuable business.

The impending automobile free trade pact between Canada and the U.S. is a further move to make it more difficult for other car-making nations to do business with us, and further increases our dependence on our southern neighbors.

The fact remains, however, that Canada's export drive is losing steam, and it is clear that a more understanding Ottawa policy is required to revive it. Even tourism on which the present government set high hopes produced a net deficit of $80,000,000 in the first half.

In view of all these international complications, to which must be added the nation's domestic labor strife and the unchecked decline in the purchasing power of the dollar, it is perhaps not surprising that the Liberals chose this moment to go to the country with a new program of spending which it might not economically be able to do at a later date.

'Rules' of War

NORTH VIET NAM will no longer follow the rules of the 1949 Geneva Convention governing the treatment of prisoners of war.

The trial and execution of two American prisoners of war indicated the intention; an official announcement has now disclosed the decision.

Last June the International Red Cross requested assurances from both sides in the Viet Nam engagement that the Geneva Convention, in particular as it relates to prisoners of war and civilian population, would be observed. The United States and South Viet Nam replied immediately that the terms of the convention would be scrupulously followed. Until now Hanoi had made no reply.

Its attitude would appear to be an invitation to acceleration of attacks from the air and from the sea by the United States armed forces, and, one would think, involves a very desperate risk of the bombing of the North Viet Nam capital itself.

Apparently the threat to try captured enemies "under the principles laid down by the Nuremberg International Court," as the Hanoi announcement puts it, means that North Viet Nam is classifying American and South Viet Nam airmen as war criminals. No specific mention is made of the treatment that captured ground force personnel can expect. But it would be unwise to try to predict the reaction of men in the field toward any captive with the barbarous example of Hanoi to encourage them.

War is always a barbarous business, of course. And unhappily brutalities breed retaliation, and atrocities more horrors. But the killing of the two Americans allegedly in reprisal for the execution of terrorists by the South Vietnamese is inexcusable even on these flimsy grounds.

The so-called rules of war differentiate distinctly between captives in uniform and infiltrators in civilian garb or disguised in the uniform of the captor. The soldier has always been entitled (since the Geneva Convention, in any event) to fair treatment and protection. But the infiltrator is in the classification of a spy. Like the terrorist, he knows the penalty he risks upon discovery.

Heaven forbid that we should see a duplication of the "rape of Nanking" which so shocked observers in the Sino-Japanese war more than three decades ago. But the fact remains that disgusting episode was at least in part in reprisal for atrocities discovered by the Japanese troops in the field, the burial up to the neck of living and sometimes wounded prisoners for ants to devour.

Certainly the recollection of such things is distasteful, but not more so than the fact of war itself. They go together. And men experienced in battle will be the first to admit its frequently brutalizing effects.

It is not such a long step from the massacre of prisoners to the use of the ultimate weapon and the destruction of the world.

Pageantry on Show

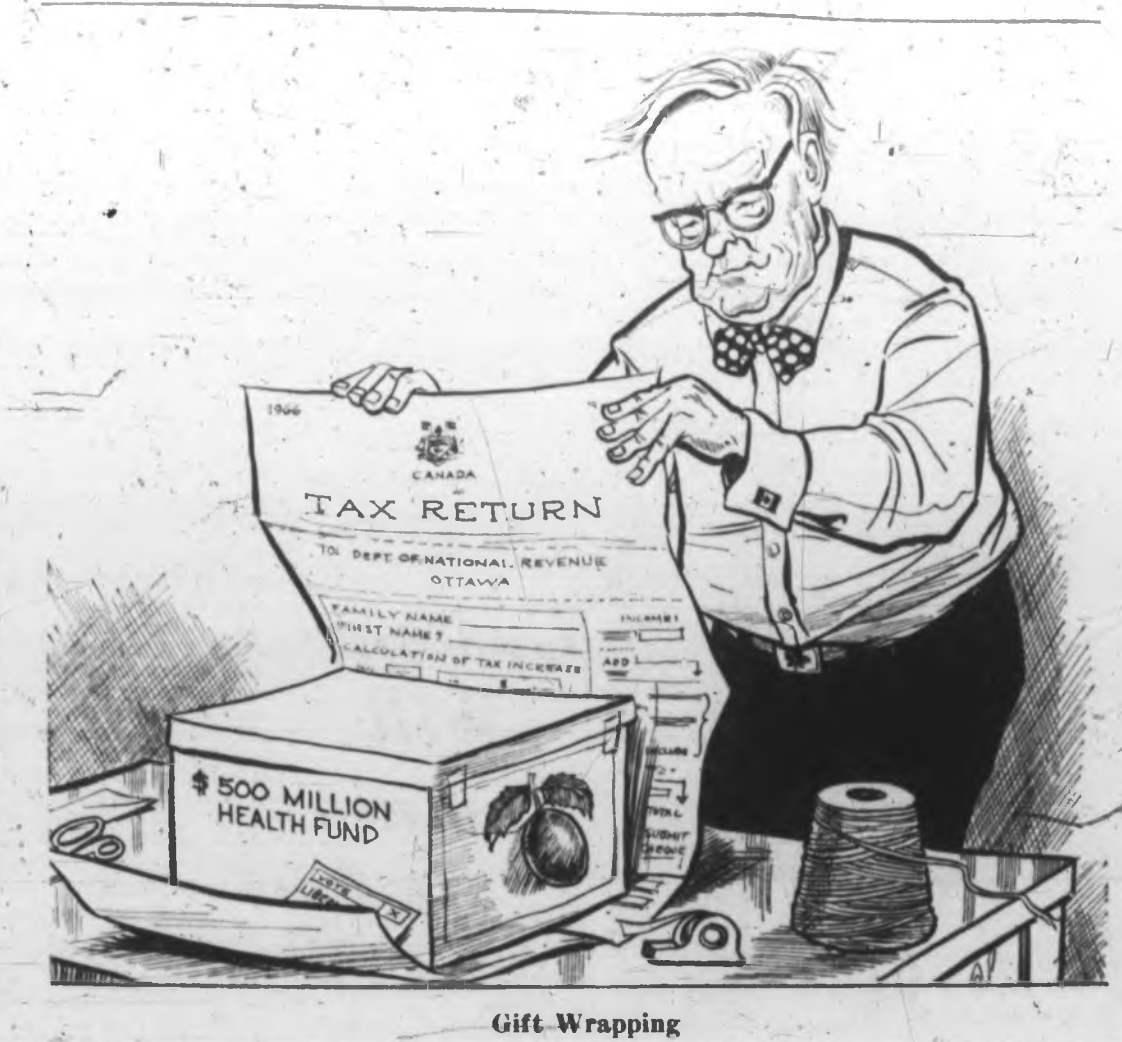

A TOUCH of military pageantry will be unfolded on Saturday when the civic fathers halt the Canadian Scottish Regiment marching with fixed bayonets to ceremonial occasion at Beacon Hill Park.

The challenge will be of courtesy vintage, since last year the city conferred its "freedom" on the regiment with permission to march in such martial guise. This was an honor unusual not only here but across the country. Accolade of this distinction grants military units the right to bear fixed bayonets through community environs.

Once the regiment is formally recognized in accord with ancient British tradition the order will be "carry on," and the unit will parade in style, enriched with veterans from local ex-servicemen's organizations. It should provide a pleasing and spectacular event for onlookers.

At Beacon Hill a granite marker will be unveiled to commemorate the presentation in 1962 of a new regimental color by the late colonel-in-chief, the Princess Royal. This also is of traditional record and recalls a special day in the history of the Canadian Scottish.

The "Can-Scots," as colloquial reference terms them, are of popular and well-earned lustre in peace and war; Saturday's show will be worth seeing.

For the United States

A Price of Power—Unpopularity

By PATRICK O'DONOVAN from Washington

THE rest of this year might, in the manner of U.S. publicity, be described as "Hate America Year." For it is clear that this country faces yet another of those mounting waves of dislike abroad that from time to time engulf her reputation.

Last week the House of Representatives, almost unanimously, passed a resolution to the effect that interference in the affairs of another country in this hemisphere was legitimate if it was done to prevent the spread of Communism. It has caused an upsurge of resentment in Latin America.

The resolution is not binding, or even influential on U.S. policy-makers. Yet already the congresses of Colombia and Peru have passed unanimous votes of condemnation and the meeting of Pan-American foreign ministers designed for November will be postponed until March to avoid wounding the conference in an outpouring of anti-U.S. abuse.

The United States from time to time now describes herself as a world policeman. The role is not accepted elsewhere, and where it is played out, in San Domingo, or in Viet Nam or the Congo, there arise the national accusations of police brutality.

There are many reasons for this readiness to reject the United States. There is ideological opposition, and envy and fear. There is the easy way out of blaming your own inadequacies on the power on which you depend. There are genuine grievances, such as the fluctuating prices offered for raw materials upon whose sale comparatively poor nations often depend.

There is the colossal and inevitable tactlessness of a great and gaudy democracy. Nothing is hidden here. The press sets a great magnifying glass over the indiscretions of senators and generals. If some of the prime ministers of the U.S., then the U.S. proclaims it to the world. Any man can express any view. Policy, even under President Johnson, is debated as it is worked out, not explained subsequently, after it has been performed.

There is the settled and apparently unchangeable resentment that comes from France. There is the bitter resentment of the prime minister of Singapore, who though an anti-Communist would apparently prefer the Russians to the Americans on his island.

There is a litter of burned-out buildings around the world that were once U.S. libraries. And there is the certainty of bitter recrimination and the possibility of total rejection in the effort that will be made to settle the Kashmir dispute. And all this will be directed, primarily, at the United States.

It is true that the same resentment is directed against the United Kingdom. When Britain happens to be the dominant power, dislike of Britain tends to take precedence over that of the U.S. The resentment for both powers, however, comes to the surface only in times of frustration or disappointment.

There is, in fact, world-wide resentment of what appears to be an Anglo-Saxon hegemony. It is largely confined to the poor and the under-developed, which is a large part of the world. The granting of aid and technical assistance does nothing to soften this resentment. Egypt, which depends for its sustenance on U.S. wheat, yet feels free to be anti-American.

And finally, and most important, there is the fact that out of the confusion and disappointment of the de-colonialization process, there has arisen the conflict of race. In this the West is left in confrontation with the rest of the world, and in this confrontation opposition comes more easily and naturally to the rest than does co-operation and gratitude and friendship.

The opposition is concentrated on the Anglo-Saxons, because they are the most effective, because of their history of power and the way they used it. Other once-dominating powers, like the French and the Dutch, have been misused in this concentration of largely innocent victims. The brilliant if somewhat Machiavellian tactics of President de Gaulle have been designed to dissociate himself from this Anglo-Saxon target. When the Russians or the Chinese engulf a small nation the protest from the rest of the world is muted and unenthusiastic.

Of course, this mass of resentment is not a constant thing. It rises and falls. It can be suspended for a time. President Eisenhower was greeted by his visit to Delhi as the King of Peace. There are times when America is genuinely loved in Japan. Pakistan had a honeymoon with the United States. Turkey was once as dependable as Britain. But this friendship is a brittle thing and it breaks easily at the first tension.

In the present interim period of history, such resentments are perhaps inevitable. They come continually as a surprise to the United States. She, for example, feels a genuine affection for Pakistan, and for India an admiration tempered only by official impatience of her moral pretensions. The Americans genuinely believe that their motives are good and unselfish. Their war aims in Viet Nam are the oddest in history—to get their opponents to negotiate. Yet the administration, at least, believes that their interference in Senegal was a moral imperative.

But foreign policy is not conducted like a popularity contest. The anti-American riots are in themselves only symptoms and not always reliable ones. Unpopularity is one of the prices of power and the Russians have learned this, too, in that part of the world which they dominate.

This present session of the UN is likely to prove a forum for the expression of this resentment. Some of it will be real, some petulant, some, like the speech of the Pakistani foreign minister at the Security Council, done for the folks back home.

The Americans are no longer distressed by this sort of vilification. They no longer seek a return for their aid in terms of love and admiration. They attack more practical strings. It is a sign of their confidence. They have matured into their role of a dominating power. It is true that President Johnson would dearly like to achieve the sort of consensus on the international scene that he has achieved on the domestic. But it is not his supreme aim.

The next few months are going to be rough. But this is a country that can weather them. And always behind the Americans are the brutal facts of power and money. More liberals will be burned and more flags trampled on. This is inevitable. It will be accepted with a certain wry sadness. It will not affect the direction of U.S. policy.

And whatever the mobs may do and be allowed to do, the opponents of America will continue to be ruled by what they consider their own self-interest.

He adds that China will then have three choices:

1. To impose her own decisions along the disputed borders with India by establishing military posts which may sometimes make aggressive moves to force India to keep large forces on the border.

2. To seize limited areas along the borders. The aim would be to obtain control of focal districts not very important in themselves but essential to large operations in the Himalaya area.

3. To secure part of India by carrying out offensive operations jointly or singly in three sectors.

The first of these sectors is around Ladakh. If the Chinese were successful in such an attack, they would be able to proceed to the next choice.

Disillusioned Neutral

Norway and the Alliance

By ROLAND HUNTFOORD from Oslo

ALTHOUGH foreign policy is not among the immediate issues pressing on the new Norwegian government, it will undoubtedly become a question of concern before their term of office ends in 1969, for in that year NATO is due for revision and the continuation of Norway's membership will be a matter of passionate debate.

Newspaper articles to date are muddled by the trauma of the last war. In one way, few other countries have such a faith in NATO. It is the faith of the convert, for Norway is a disillusioned and disappointed neutral.

The proper administration of law should not be manipulated for one's convenience or that one's machinations. It should be administered efficiently and economically for the public good.

Sanich with a population in excess of 50,000 and its own court room facilities is deserving of better treatment than has arbitrarily been handed to it in this regard, and for that matter in other affairs concerning the attorney general's department.

Such arbitrary and unilateral action is hardly conducive to the aura of co-operation which will be expected of the Sanich citizens in the near future.

Apart from the advertisement giving the dates, etc., in the Colonist, it is gratifying to read of the publicity being given the orchestra in other activities.

With this year being the 25th anniversary of the Symphony Society, the retail merchants and other business establishments in the city and surrounding shopping centres are co-operating to make this the most outstanding and successful year since the society was inaugurated.

In Perspective

Continuing Threat

By MAN-FREEDMAN from Washington

IN New Delhi the lifting of the threat of war with China has brought relief but no feeling of safety for the future. The Chinese border problems remain completely unsolved. China has shown no interest in the proposal by Ceylon and other countries to settle these border disputes by outside mediation.

While the causes of friction remain, the danger of conflict also remains. The truce has solved the Indian-Chinese problem no more than it has ended the quarrel over Kashmir. In fact, Indian officials have always believed that China would present the greatest threat in the period after 1966.

This threat has been defined in clear and precise terms in a report prepared for the Institute for Strategic Studies in London by Mr. V. C. Trivedi, formerly joint secretary of the Indian ministry of external affairs. His analysis was written before the present crisis, it therefore has an element of prophetic wisdom that entitles it to great respect.

He points out that the "real threat to the security of India" comes from the Chinese force in Tibet. The ability to supply these forces, and to increase them, will grow when the Chinese finish extending the railway line from Sinkiang to Lhasa which they "hope to complete by 1968." When this happens, "China will be able to double its forces now in Tibet and maintain a larger field army at war tempo."

The second sector involves Uttar Pradesh and Nepal. Rough ground and problems of supply combine to make large operations very difficult. The problems will be eased but not solved when the Kodari-Kathmandu road in Nepal is finished by the end of 1968.

The third sector involves Sikkim, Bhutan and Nefu. The analysis by Mr. Trivedi is extremely sombre. He writes that "any offensive in this area gives China the ability to deploy its forces to the maximum." China can use a number of routes to isolate Assam and Nefu from the rest of India. She can also move troops directly from Yunnan through North Burma to reduce the weight of the supply problems on Tibet. He concludes that "operations in this sector will enable China to secure a vital area of India."

There is stark outline to the strategic challenge to India's security. In coming weeks and months India will be making renewed and more urgent appeals to the United States for military supplies. Those supplies should be granted without irritating delay. They would not be a cage of battle to China but would instead improve the chances of peace. One of the few facts imposing restraint on Peking is the knowledge that New Delhi is in close touch with Washington. That line of communication should be kept open and should be strengthened.

The rights and wrongs of Kashmir are in dispute. On China's threat to India the issue is clear. Neither the United States nor any other country interested in peace can allow China to attack India with impunity and with profit. Unless they act in time to give India new securities against aggression, China will not long be deterred from new probes and dangerous attacks.

1965. Publishers Newspaper Syndicate.

is founded on freedom from alliance in peace, and it is unlikely that this would be altered, certainly not within four years of NATO's revision.

The experiences of Norway and Sweden are too different to allow their present policies to match. The Norwegians have lost faith in neutrality because of the Nazi occupation; since the Swedes were not involved in the last war their faith has been strengthened. They are isolationist and neutral, and a formal pact, even with so close a neighbor as Norway, would be unthinkable.

In 1939 there was a strong movement in Sweden to enter into a defence pact with Finland and Norway. Again in 1958 there was some discussion in Sweden of an alliance with Norway and Denmark to create a unified, neutral Scandinavia. But it came to nothing, for trust in neutrality and absolute independence was too strong.

Norway and Denmark entered NATO in self-defence and political developments in Sweden over the past 20 years have not altered the situation. Almost anything can happen in Norway in the next four years, but the country is unlikely to withdraw from NATO or whatever organization succeeds it. The memory of the five-year occupation is too vivid.

After five years of Nazi occupation, the Norwegians swore neutrality and joined NATO. They built up their defences, and out of the wartime resistance groups there grew the voluntary home guard movement, as a complement to the normal conscript forces.

Excepting the extreme Left, all parties have more or less accepted the new philosophy of defence. But there has been certain ill-will towards it. There is still a widespread predilection towards pacifism, and there is still a distrust of Germany. Both have helped to crystallize opposition to NATO.

The opponents have three main footholds in Norwegian political life—the extreme left-wing Socialist People's Party, the left wing of the Labor Party, and the radical faction of the Liberal Party. The Socialist People's Party drew 100,000 votes on an anti-NATO neutralist platform out of an electorate of two million. Perhaps 10 of the Labor Party's 68 Storting members would like Norway out of NATO.

The government is a Right-Centrist coalition. With the exception of the Radical Liberals, there are no Socialists in the cabinet. The Conservatives, who have 31 seats. Historically they are the least pacifist of Norwegian parties. In 1940 it was one of their politicians, Mr. C. J. Hambro, who set up a government-in-exile, and inflicted Quilting as a usurper.

The change of government has revived suggestions, which have appeared from time to time since 1945, of a defence pact with Sweden—provided Norway leaves NATO. Few Norwegians would like to stand alone again, but with Sweden they could form a strong neutral bloc outside the great powers.

But this is wishful thinking. The idea of neutrality, and of complete freedom from all foreign alliance, is so deeply ingrained among all sections of the Swedish electorate that it would be political suicide to enter into a pact with the Norwegians. Sweden's foreign policy

Service Vote Could Decide Election Fight in Victoria

By IAN STREET

The service vote, particularly in a naval and garrison community like this one, is going to be a big factor in the Nov. 8 federal election.

And don't think the candidates and their campaign managers aren't aware of this factor.

The issue popped up early at Wednesday night's Conservative convention in the Empress Hotel when a speaker for Eric Charlton said it was the service vote which narrowly beat his man in the 1963 election.

That won't happen this time, the delegates were told. The men of the services and their wives don't like Paul Hellyer's plans for unification of the three branches of the armed forces. And, what's more, the speaker said, the service vote doesn't like the idea of the Red Ensign either.

When he got up to make the speech that won him the nomination he lashed out at the Liberals for losing sight of some of our great traditions including the retirement of the white ensign from naval ships.

David Groos, the Liberal incumbent and at this stage of the campaign anyway the man to beat, undoubtedly is fully aware of the unpopularity the Liberals have achieved through some of their policies affecting the armed services.

Anyway, on the night Mr. Groos was nominated by acclamation, Northern Affairs Minister Arthur Laing made a particular point of the fact that servicemen really should thank the former naval captain for what he's done on their behalf.

Mr. Laing actually said on that occasion things could have been a lot worse had not Mr. Groos been in Ottawa battling for them, though he may not have used precisely those words.

It seemed like a deliberate attempt to head off any possible loss of service votes through defence policies of the Pearson administration by setting up Mr. Groos, the local member in the last parliament, as champion of the rights of servicemen and women everywhere.

I've no doubt that Mr. Groos, who served on several defence committees including one for NATO, did devote much of his time to service matters.

But it's difficult to envision him in the role of Canute trying to hold back the tide of service unification.

The staunch supporters of local real estate man Eric Charlton, who lost the 1963 election to Mr. Groos, claim that the 1,538-vote margin of victory was almost entirely in the service vote.

The margin was certainly much smaller on election night and when the service vote came in a few days later the Tories still hoped, though with no particular expectation of success, that the servicemen would swing the balance in their favor. It didn't work out that way — but they hope things may be reversed this time.

It's one of those more or less accepted political "isms" that the services traditionally support the Liberals. I should think it's probably more a question of supporting the status quo. After all, with the exception of the Defenbaker years from 1957 to 1962 all post-war governments have been Liberal.

But it's difficult to envision him in the role of Canute trying to hold back the tide of service unification.

The staunch supporters of local real estate man Eric Charlton, who lost the 1963 election

There's no real way of assessing how much defence policies of the Pearson administration will hurt the party's chances this time. Among those still serving this could not be a significant factor at all. Many in this category may feel, as local Liberals hope they do, that the money saved in unification will go into new planes, warships and other equipment.

Those who have been short-termed, that is retired early as the result of Mr. Hellyer's housecleaning, are resentful. And there are enough in this town to cause the Liberal campaign officials some sleepless nights. Only the ballot box will tell whether the worry was justified.

Deadly Rivals Keep Talking

For 11 years, secret talks have been held in Warsaw between the United States and Communist China through their ambassadors in Poland. This is the only official contact between the nations, who do not recognize each other diplomatically. Following is an account of the atmosphere of the talks:

The London Observer, from Warsaw

Private meetings between China and the United States in Warsaw—once described as the longest standing match of modern times—are to continue despite the change in American representation.

John Cabot, U.S. ambassador to Poland, who has led the talks for his country for the past four years here, is being replaced by John A. Gronowski, an American of Polish origin, who was appointed postmaster-general by President Kennedy.

In Warsaw the Chinese Ambassador, Wang Kuo, Chuan, made it plain with something less than diplomatic tact that as far as he and his government were concerned it could not matter less who sits on the other side of the table.

The talks would go on.

There was a time not long ago when many diplomats here began to wonder aloud if the Warsaw meetings really were worthwhile. It seemed that neither side wished to attract the odium of calling a halt to these contacts which began in Geneva in 1954 although there was little perceptible advantage to be gained.

But as an American diplomat said last week, "In times of crisis you keep talking whatever happens, and this is a crisis."

America's growing involvement in the Viet Nam war has given the Warsaw conclaves deeper significance.

Twice this year America has used the Warsaw meetings to warn China against extended intervention. Once was early this year when China was advised not to march into North Viet Nam in support of the Viet Cong. The second time came last month when China was warned not to intervene in the Indo-Pakistan dispute.

The discreet meeting-place between the representatives of the world's two deadliest rivals is a faded 18th century hunting lodge in Warsaw Park.

The ambassadors of the U.S. and China have been meeting regularly since 1958 in a series of confrontations where they challenge each other's policies and provide elaborate backing for their own.

Apart from routine unofficial contacts along the perimeter of Southeast Asia and intelligence channels this is the only open official and diplomatic contact between China and the U.S., who do not recognize each other diplomatically.

In the interests of better understanding between East and West, Poland provides the lodge, the guards, the mineral water and testine biscuits without charging either embassy in Warsaw.

The two ambassadors drive up in limousines looking rather like bankers attending a board meeting.

But as far as anyone knows the two representatives have never exchanged a handshake in the seven years that the meetings have taken place in Warsaw.

Polish security men hover behind the curtains but vacate the conference room when the principals, each accompanied by three aides, are ensconced in their room.

It would probably be in the worst possible taste to inquire whether the conference room has microphones hidden behind the ornate plaster walls.

When the two ambassadors are in negotiations no murmurs of their exchanges reaches the outside.

They sit at massive wooden desks several feet apart and for most of the time read to each other their respective governments' viewpoints, warnings, challenges and recriminations.

By mutual agreement the subjects of the talks are kept secret. If one ambassador wishes to tell the press something he is obliged to try to obtain the other's consent. This has never been given.

Despite the secrecy there have been leaks over the years and subjects raised at the talks have included the detonation of China's first atomic device in 1964 and Viet Nam in all its aspects.

The next meeting will be the

UNIPOM Joins The UNMOGIP

The United Nations has added another set of initials to denote another far-flung operation.

This time it's UNIPOM for United Nations India-Pakistan Observation Mission.

This isn't to be confused with UNMOGIP which is the United Nations Military Observer Group in India and Pakistan.

The latter has been in operation in Kashmir since 1949. The former is the new peace mission established to oversee the ceasefire between India and Pakistan in areas outside Kashmir.

By now, everyone knows what UNFICYP and UNEF are, of course. To refresh your memory, they are the United Nations Force in Cyprus and the United Nations Emergency Force, which operates on the Egyptian side of the Egyptian-Israeli border.

And don't forget UNTSO. That's for United Nations Truce Supervisory Observers, who work in five countries of Palestine—Israel, Egypt, Syria, Lebanon and Jordan.

Once there was UNYOM, too. But the United Nations Yemen Observer Mission has been disbanded.

Wheels Go Slow in City Machinery

Methods of oiling the wheels to get more out of the city's planning machinery were discussed Thursday at a regular meeting of city council.

Aldermanic consensus was that while the present process is slow, it is thorough in its safeguarding of the rights of not only the promoters of schemes but also the people who are affected in the long run.

Being considered was a plan by Edca Holdings Ltd. to develop a garden apartment complex with historic, Pease House as the hub.

To do this the company, whose spokesman was C. R. Sandoy, asked that the site, between Begbie and Fort east of Coldharbour Road, be rezoned from a multiple dwelling zone to a zone for garden apartments.

Decision of council was to follow the recommendation of the advisory planning commission and table the matter so that the question of population density could be looked into.

SINCE JULY 27

"It seems that on one hand we are trying to attract developers to Victoria and, on the other, delaying them when they come," said Ald. Michael Griffin, calling attention to the fact that the company's application had been in the works since July 27.

City Manager Dennis Young said that for years council has been trying to find ways to speed the planning processes in the city. However, it is not only the developer who has to be considered. Many other people are affected.

If people want special consideration they have to be prepared to wait for it, said Ald. Millard Mooney.

An application from Robbins Fleet Service Ltd. to establish a parking lot on the north side of View Street east of Cook was rejected on the grounds that a lot there would reduce property value.

Several householders appeared before council to object to establishment of a lot in that area.

Permission was given to rezone an area at Young, Michigan and Toronto streets for a two-story high-rise apartment building.

Final development plans have not been prepared, but the building will be similar to the Lord and Lady Simpson apartments in James Bay.

An application for a parking lot, also from Robbins Fleet Service, was granted on the recommendation of the planning commission. Site will be on View Street between Quadra and Vancouver.

The mayor of Seattle wrote thanking Victoria for the gift of a cluster light standard. It has been placed in a key spot in a Seattle park, he said.

Everyone concerned will receive a "thank-you" letter for their work in making the Union of B.C. Municipalities Convention, held here recently, the biggest success in its history.

Congratulations came from all sides, said Ald. Millard Mooney and Mayor Wilson.

Princess Alexandra of Kent is expected to visit Victoria on either May 24 or Oct. 25, 1966. A recent letter from the department of national defence said the princess would visit the city in connection with the Queen's Own Rifles Battalion of which she is colonel-in-chief. Official date will be confirmed later. Meanwhile, city council approved of the idea of a civic reception when she does arrive.

Shell-Oil Workers Veto Strike Action

WINNIPEG (CP)—Marketing employees at the Shell Oil refinery here Thursday voted 44-17, against joining other union locals across western Canada in striking for higher wages and other benefits.

A company spokesman said 61 were eligible to vote in the government-supervised strike vote and 61 cast their ballots.

The rejection was the first of the oil, chemical, and atomic workers who have struck against British American Oil Company plants from Clarkson, Ont., to Port Moody, B.C.

Last week, refinery workers at the Shell plant voted 15-8 in favor of strike action but no date had been set. A strike vote is still pending at B.A.'s subsidiary plant, Anglo-American, in Brandon.

Six workers at Empire Oil Co. in Saskatoon, also a B.A. subsidiary, started the strike

Sept. 10. Two days later, 105 workers at B.A.'s Royalite plant in Saskatoon were out of work.

Union members claimed they were locked out but company officials said it was an orderly shutdown of operations in face of a strike. Since then, B.A. plants in British Columbia, Moose Jaw and Clarkson have been affected.

The Clarkson plant, however, remained in operation with supervisory personnel carrying out the duties of the striking workers. In Moose Jaw, efforts were under way early this week to resume operations with supervisory staff.

Coast Guard Rescues Holed Cabin Cruiser

By BOB PETHICK
"Ship aground. Requests assistance."

Steaming on a routine trip toward Nanaimo, the light-house tender Sir James Douglas picks up the call and the location — off Roche Harbor — three miles away.

An alteration in course. A call for full speed. The Douglas dips in the turn and rights herself on the new course.

It is 1:40 p.m. Sept. 22. On the radio, Air Search and Rescue and the United States Coast Guard are informed of the Douglas' move.

Already the crew is clearing away the work boat.

Emergency gear is being prepared. The engine turns faster as the Douglas takes a bone in her teeth.

A United States Coast Guard aircraft circles the area. The pleasure craft "El Dorado" stands by.

Engines ring off as the Douglas pulls in close at 1:55 p.m.

The Commando is partly aground on a rock at the entrance to Roche Harbor. She is holed and taking water rapidly.

The ship transmits to headquarters. "Workboat alongside with pumps working." It is 2:02 p.m., 25 minutes after the first call went out.

More help is on the way.

At 2:20 p.m. a U.S. Coast Guard helicopter arrives with an additional pump and lowers it to the stricken vessel.

A rubber boat with emergency repair gear puts away from the Douglas at 2:30 p.m. Just as the crew of the "workboat" signals "Pumps holding their own."

The Commando's crew is loaded aboard the El Dorado and taken to Roche Harbor.

The Douglas radios "damage control measures effective." The 40-foot Commando is now afloat. It is 3:48.

The Commando is taken in tow to Roche Harbor by the Douglas and beached "to the satisfaction of the operator and the insurance representative."

The last chapter in this smooth rescue which the Coast Guard considers "routine" will take place late tonight in Port Angeles when the Sir James Douglas returns the pump lowered by the helicopter to the Coast Guard station.

But as far as Capt. Art Mountain and the 27-man crew of the Sir James Douglas are concerned, the rescue and salvage operation ended at 5:50 p.m. Sept. 22, when the ship turned back on her course to Nanaimo.

The ship's log sums it up: "Incident closed."

Hydro Holds Cost Line

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority Thursday put the onus on contractors to check spiraling construction costs in the province.

Gordon Shrum, co-chairman, said the crown agency will refuse to guarantee payment of extra fringe benefits negotiated after new contracts are awarded.

He also said Hydro will meet only 50 per cent of wage increases negotiated during the life of any new contract.

NEW CLAUSE

A clause to this effect will be placed in the specifications for each new contract, Dr. Shrum said. The clause will replace one in existing contracts guaranteeing Hydro will meet 100 per cent of escalation of labor costs.

He said the new policy will not affect master agreements between Hydro and unions involved in projects on the Peace and Columbia Rivers.

On Wednesday, a Toronto steel official said in Edmonton that complaints about rising costs have been low because of "terrific tight competition."

TIGHT COMPETITION

H. G. Johns, executive vice-president of the Canadian Institute of Steel Construction, where profits were too low, he said an interview that construction costs have been low because of "terrific tight competition."

The industry hasn't been making money and several large firms have been in financial difficulties because they were forced into taking contracts where profits were too low, he said.

'Big Sister' Eager to Help

BOWLING GREEN, Ohio — Like hundreds of other freshmen women at Bowling Green State University, Sue Codrington of Euclid was assigned a "big sister" to help her adjust to college life.

But Sue's first meeting with Pat Smith, a junior from Fremont, was a shock.

"Big sis" turned out to be a strapping male.

Smith submitted his name to the Women Students' Association as a joke last spring, but has since decided he likes the job.

He'll even accompany Sue to the "big-little sis" picnic Saturday.

CHRISTCHURCH, England (UPI) — John Berrell, who has the job of keeping the pigeon population under control here, has devised an efficient trap, but a problem has arisen. Berrell has caught 130 birds in three months, but 70 of them were racing pigeons, which he returned to their owners. "The town is on the pigeon racing route from the continent," he said, "when bad weather delays races the birds get hungry, and stop off for a meal—in my baited trap."

EDMONTON — An argument that Harry Hubach, 36, was insane when a security guard was murdered and three United States Air Force fighter jets dynamited was made in Alberta Supreme Court. Defence counsel Vern Schwab said Hubach, charged with capital murder in the death of Theron Richardson, 48, did not know it was morally or legally wrong to commit murder and dynamite airplanes.

After the last war he became purchasing agent for Elgin General Hospital in Ontario and retired to Victoria in 1963.

Council Wants to Decide

Decisions such as the recent one which forbade the sale of a piece of city-owned land to a municipal employee, may in future be dealt with in open council rather than in committee. "I don't think that only what might be called positive decisions should be dealt with by council," said Ald. Michael Griffin. "Sometimes negative decisions are of equal importance." It was not right, added Ald. Griffin, that such "life-and-death" decisions should be handled in committee and then never heard of again. "That's true. Many times I wonder about decisions which have been made by committees of which I am not a member," said Ald. Millard Mooney. In the case referred to, the mayor's vote resolved an administrative deadlock. Two members of council wanted to sell a city-owned lot to a worker in the city engineer's department, and two were against.

Bailiff Found Guilty of Assault

Bailiff Leslie Ironside wasn't properly equipped when he went with a distress warrant to the home of George Nestor, 4171 Oakridge, Aug. 20.

Magistrate William Ostler told Ironside this in Saanich court Thursday before finding him guilty of assault on Donna Mae Nestor.

Ironside, 160 Memorial, was fined $25.

Legality of the warrant held by Ironside was disputed. It was made out to 569 Broadway, the original address of the Nestors, and then altered to the Oakridge number.

Ironside said Wednesday in evidence that the alteration was made with the knowledge of two employees of the Royal Trust.

Thursday they denied knowledge of the alteration.

Prosecutor Kenneth Murphy said the alteration invalidated the warrant and Robert Price for Ironside, argued that it made no difference to Ironside legally carrying out his duties.

USED FORCE
Mr. Ostler found discrepancies in the evidence of the two transfer men who testified Ironside did not touch the girl.

"I am satisfied Ironside applied force by forcing open the door held by the girl," said Mr. Ostler.

John Lawrence Smith, being held in Wilkinson Road prison awaiting his appeal to the Supreme Court, was found guilty of assaulting prison officer Frank Bedford July 23.

Magistrate Ostler agreed with the defence that Bedford exceeded his authority in sending Smith to isolation.

NO RIGHT
But Smith had no right to attack Bedford he said, and was sentenced to four months' jail.

Gerald Brune, being held on remand, should have kept out of the fight, said Mr. Ostler.

He, too, was found guilty of assault and was remanded to Oct. 8 for sentence.

Rapid Transit Bill Considered

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Johnson is to sign into law a $90,000,000 rapid rail transit research bill aimed at alleviating the nation's jammed highways and airports.

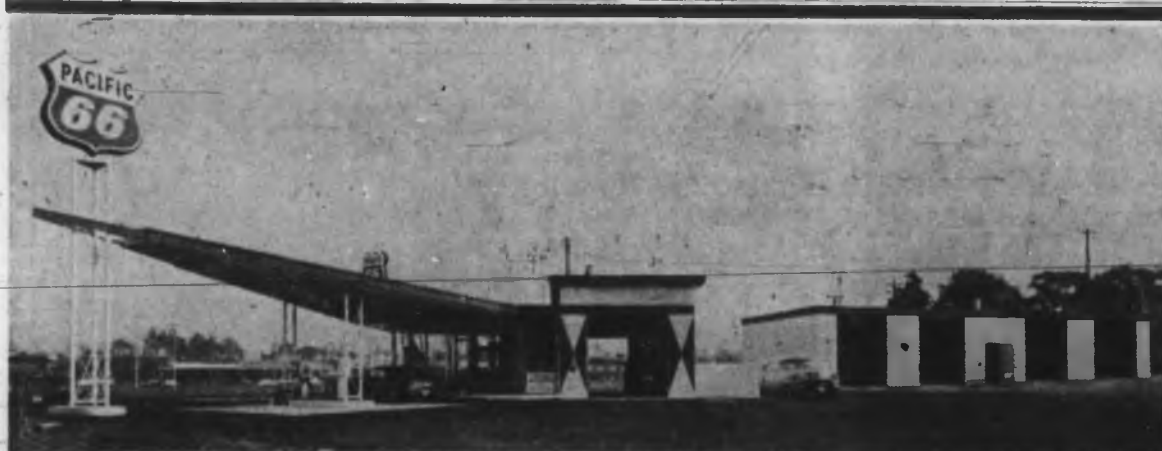

The bill, to cover a three-year period, is designed to speed up conventional trains to 150 miles an hour, but a long-range view by the commerce department may lead to underground travel in trains at speeds up to 400 miles an hour.

Interior City Leads

By HARRY YOUNG
(Business Editor)

Prince George is the easy leader of the 1965 B.C. building boom, according to latest figures from Central Mortgage and Housing.

The fast growing northern city started five times as many projects in the first eight months of 1965 as it did in the same period of 1964. C.M. and H. reports at 893 compared with 175 a year ago.

KAMLOOPS NEXT

The only other major community to show an appreciable gain from a year ago is Kamloops where the building starts in the eight months period have risen to 128 from 54.

At the other end of the chart is Victoria, where starts this year are down one-third, 1,164 against 1,705 a year ago. The decline was fairly general among the various metropolitan districts.

In Vancouver starts dropped by three per cent.

Experience Packed Behind Maple Leaf Blue Line

If experience counts for anything, Victoria Maple Leafs have it in spades in their defensive platoon. Above group represents 69 years of pro hockey. Defencemen, left to right, with years of experience in brackets, are Sandy Hucul (11), Fred Hucul (14), Claude Labrosse (8), Aut Erickson (8) and Bill Shvets (14). Goalie Al Miller, front, has spent 12 years in pro hockey. (Photos by W. Boucher)

Leafs Hard at Work

Same Faces, New Outlook

By JIM TANG

There aren't too many strange faces at the Victoria Maple Leaf training camp but things certainly appear to have changed drastically from last season.

The big change, without doubt, is in attitude. It was no secret that the Leafs last season were often a disgruntled collection of hockey players. Most of them weren't happy at the change which brought them to Victoria and were further soured immediately when they found on arrival there were hardly enough bodies for a game of hearts.

Manager Buck Houle managed to get enough bodies together to ice a full club by the time the season opened but matters didn't get much better.

MORE SPORT PAGES 17, 18

When it got off to a bad start and internal troubles bubbled over, the Leafs finally did get righted and made a fine effort which put them in the Western Hockey League final but it was a sometimes stormy road.

Things appear vastly different this time around. The Leafs haven't quite got their full complement of players but they are reasonably close to it with three free additions to go with 12 returning veterans.

HAPPY CAMP

More important, perhaps, is that new coach Frank Mario has an eager collection of players and a happy training camp. Workouts are briskly conducted and Mario is more than pleased with the response he has been getting.

"These fellows are pros," he said yesterday. "they know what they have to do. I believe they'll get the job done."

And Mario was almost as happy as any coach can be with the personnel he had available for the start of training camp.

JUST AS GOOD

"Of course," he said. "I can't really know for certain but I believe that what we have at the moment makes us at least as good as the Leafs were when they finished the season. With what we still have coming to us we are as close as any player away from what I'd like to have."

Missing from the lineup which finished last season are Bob Taylor, Ronnie Wilcox, Ed Mazur, Danny Belsie and Larry Keenan. In their places are Aut Erickson, a proven defenceman; Bob Barlow, who scored 30 goals for Seattle last season, and Mike Labadie, a veteran right-winger who has been a solid American Hockey League performer for some time.

'WE'VE GAINED'

"I'd have to say," Mario commented, "that we have gained in what turnover of talent we have had."

The turnover doesn't include Keenan, a 35-goal man last season who recently had a knee operation and isn't expected to be ready to play until mid-November.

FEW WORRIES

Mario is most pleased with his defence crew. With Erickson added on defence to Fred and Sandy Hucul, Claude Labrosse and a trimmer Bill Shvets and Al Miller back between the pipes, he has few worries about his stop troops.

And he's close up front with Keenan due back when he's ready and either Andy Heberton or another proven forward due from the parent Toronto Maple Leafs.

"What we need now is a centreman," Mario said. "We need someone to replace Keenan." Dick Lamoureux, who didn't get too much ice time last season, is getting a chance as the third pivotman to go along with returnees Milan Marcetta, 34-6 last season, between Barlow and John Sleaver. Lamoureux could make good but, like any coach, Mario is anxious to have an extra centreman.

Mario is still undecided about his combinations for tomorrow's game at Nanaimo against Vancouver Canucks but he'll likely have the Huculs paired on defence with the underweight Labrosse and Shvets alternating alongside the husky Erickson.

Up front, it'll probably be Sleaver, Lou Jankowski and Gordie Redahl, who managed 76 goals and 105 assists last season as one unit. And he has a promise to see three in Marcetta, 34-6 last season, between Barlow and John Sleaver.

Lamoureux will likely work with holdovers Steve Wittek and Ed Ehrenverth and rookies Mike Laughton and Fred Purvis on the other line.

"That appears to be the temporary lineup. It will undoubtedly be changed up front when Keenan is ready and the Leafs get Heberton or his replacement and, possibly, another player from Toronto.

"We're not far away," Mario said while discussing his possible alignments. "Three more forwards should do it and we know that we are going to get at least three."

Dodger Pitching Superb In Drive to Pennant

Baseball has to turn the clock back a long way to find the kind of pitching that appears to be winning the National League championship for Los Angeles Dodgers.

It continued its amazing course, started back on Sept. 16, when Don Drysdale blanked Milwaukee's hard-hitting Braves, 4-0, on three hits last night to make it 4-1 in a row, for the Dodgers and keep their lead intact at two games with three to play.

Sandy Hoping For Rain

LOS ANGELES (AP)—If Los Angeles Dodgers play Minnesota in the world series starting Wednesday, naturally the Dodgers want to lead off with their pitching ace Sandy Koufax.

But Wednesday is Yom Kippur, a Jewish holy day. And Koufax is Jewish. What to do? "From what I've been told," Koufax said, "there are no dispensations for this particular day. But then I haven't really talked about it to a rabbi. If we sew up the pennant, I plan to take it up and find out the proceedings. If I'm told it isn't proper to pitch, then I won't because I wouldn't feel right about it."

Then Sandy added: "I'm praying for rain Wednesday. It would solve the whole matter."

Any combination of Dodger victories over the San Francisco Giants adding up to two now gives them a lead in the National League.

It appeared all but over on Sept. 16 when the Giants ran their win streak to 14 games. The Dodgers won that day, 2-0, over Chicago Cubs but they were five games out on Sept. 16.

Drysdale and Koufax, but for the one start for the latter, have been spectacular. Drysdale has won four games in the streak, the last two shutouts, gone the distance three times and to the ninth inning in the other game while permitting only three runs and 21 hits.

SAVED DAY

Koufax, who saved the 2-0 decision for Claude Osteen with brilliant ninth-inning relief on Sept. 16, has three complete-game shutouts in which he allowed but 11 hits around his knockout.

It was all needed. The Dodgers won twice by 1-0, and by 2-1, 3-2, 4-3, 7-6 and twice by 2-0 and once by 3-1. And against the toughest opposition—six against the defending champion St. Louis Cardinals, three against both the Braves and Cincinnati Reds and one against the Cubs.

The Dodgers haven't looked back since. Their pitching staff permitted but 14 runs, only 11 of them earned, in the 13 games which has them but two steps from clinching. And six of those runs came in one game, when Sandy Koufax was knocked out early in an affair against Milwaukee Braves which the Dodgers won, 7-6, in the 11th inning.

Drysdale's effort last night was the seventh shutout in the win streak. In three other games, Dodger pitching at lowed but one run and there were two in one game and three in the other. There have been four shutouts and only two runs against in the last six games of the streak.

However, it was announced that his left thumb was only dislocated and that he would pitch on Sunday if needed.

Two Games In Frisco If Playoff

LOS ANGELES (AP)—President Warren Giles of the National League conducted a coin flip and a drawing Wednesday to determine playoff arrangements in the event of a tie, and San Francisco Giants won favored positions.

If the Giants wind up in a tie with Los Angeles Dodgers in the National League pennant race, the first game of a best-of-three series would be in Los Angeles Monday. Then the teams would shift to Candlestick Park in San Francisco for games Tuesday and Wednesday, if necessary.

IN ORDER

Last night, Drysdale retired the first 14 Braves in order as he gained his fifth win in a row and 23rd of the season. And, for a change, he got an early working margin when the Dodgers scored twice in the second inning.

In San Francisco, the Giants managed to take Cincinnati Reds when pinch-hitter Orlando Cepeda hit a two-run homer in the ninth inning to break a 3-3 tie.

FIRST HOMER

It was the first home run of the season for Cepeda, who has spent almost the entire schedule on the injured list.

Giant ace Juan Marichal, injured a thumb in the seventh inning when he slid into second base after hitting a double. He was taken to hospital for x-rays and to complete a bad night, was served with papers in the $110,000 damage suit filed by Willie Mays' left hand, which he left hanging into the fence trying to haul down a drive by Hank Aaron in Milwaukee. Although the pain has lessened, he has difficulty bending the thumb around the bat.

Mays wore a golf glove with foam protective padding during Wednesday's game against St. Louis Cardinals. Although the bat did slip out once, Mays hit two singles in four chances. Mays also hit 51 home runs in 1955. Mize hit his 51 in 1947.

Maple Leafs Rout Blues In Practice

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP)—Toronto Maple Leafs captured their second National Hockey League exhibition game in a row Thursday night when they defeated New York Rangers 2-1.

A crowd of 4,423 saw Frank Mahovlich pace Toronto with three goals. Orland Kurtenbach, formerly with Boston Bruins, added two markers while Bob Pulford, Carl Brewer and George Armstrong got the others.

Doug Robinson scored the Rangers' lone goal in the first period after the Maple Leafs had built up a 3-0 lead. Neither team scored in the second but Toronto added five more goals in the third as the Ranger defence caved in.

So Solly Must Go

Hasty Shuffle for Esk Visit

Lions' Saturday Lineup Depleted

VANCOUVER — B.C. Lions will again be forced to improvise on Saturday night when they face Edmonton Eskimos in a Western Football Conference game at Empire Stadium.

Injuries have cost them the services of halfback Ron Morris.

Tomorrow's game will be available to Victoria fans who have cablevision. Game time is 8 p.m. on radio too, CKNW.

for at least a month and they'll likely have to play Saturday night without guard Steve Cotter, halfback Willie Fleming and defensive end Dick Fouts.

Cotter injured a knee against Saskatchewan Roughriders on Monday. Fleming may not be recovered from a back hurt suffered against Montreal Alouettes on Sept. 18 and Fouts injured a leg against Calgary last Saturday.

Coach Dave Skrien reported that Fleming is running well but is loathe to use him Saturday. Fouts and Cotter may both be used but would only be used in emergency situations.

To take up the slack, the Lions have reactivated Willie Taylor, veteran import lineman who resides in Vancouver and spends every training session in the B.C. camp. He will fill in for Cotter.

Vancouver NHL Rink By 1967

VANCOUVER (UPI) — A new $6,000,000 arena will be constructed on the Pacific National Exhibition grounds here for opening in May, 1967, PNE president Harry Terry said Thursday.

The federal and provincial governments have each agreed to grant $2,000,000 to the project, and the city of Vancouver $1,000,000. The other $1,000,000 will be raised by the PNE and the city at a later date, Terry added.

The building will seat 16,000 and pave the way for a National Hockey League team. Vancouver is one of six cities which applied for an NHL franchise under current major league expansion plans.

Fat Clay Working

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Heavyweight boxing champion Cassius Clay, admitting he was out of shape at 227 pounds, began light workouts Monday for his Nov. 22 title defense against former champion Floyd Patterson at Las Vegas, Nev.

Injured Redell May Be Ready

EDMONTON (CP) — There is a "real good chance" first-string quarterback Bill Redell will be back Saturday when Edmonton Eskimos meet British Columbia Lions at Vancouver, Esks head coach Neil Armstrong said Thursday.

Armstrong said Redell is recovering well from a partially dislocated collar bone. Redell was injured when brought down on a long run against Montreal Alouettes here Sept. 20.

TWO MORE

Versatile flanker Randy Kerbow, who replaced him, will be available if Redell still can't play, Armstrong said.

Don Getty, who came out of retirement to back up Kerbow, also will make the trip.

Armstrong said he may start Lou Zivkovich, newly-acquired from Winnipeg Blue Bombers, in the Esks defensive line for the Western Football Conference tussle.

Fired up after dumping Hamilton Tiger Cats of the Eastern Conference Tuesday, Armstrong said he plans to use again an I formation play that "helped to throw" Hamilton's defence.

NO SURPRISE

"It's not going to be a surprise," Armstrong said. "But we still plan to use it. It worked pretty good in that last game."

Armstrong said Esks are in top shape after the 9-3 victory at Hamilton, which followed a 40-1 licking by Ottawa Rough Riders three days earlier.

"It takes something like that to get it (the Ottawa game) out of their minds," he said.

will use Amos Bullocks and Bill Munsey at the halfback spots. Munsey at fullback and Pete Kempf at flanker. Joe Kapp, of course, will be the quarterback. With Munsey needed on offense and Morris on the injured list, the Lions will have Sonny Homer in the defence backfield along with Steve Shafer, Neal Beaumont and Poky Allen.

On the bright side, corner-back Greg Findlay and half-back Bill Lasseter appear to have fully recovered from injuries and line-backer Tom Brown, suffering from a painful neck injury, is no worse off than he was against Saskatchewan on Monday.

However, what had appeared to be a two-week "breather" for the Lions — they play next in Edmonton the following Saturday — seemed like something less after the Eskimos knocked off Hamilton Tiger-Cats, 9-3, on Tuesday.

Nine Rinks Are Needed For Bonspiel

With less than a week left before the entry deadline, only nine rinks are needed to fill out the Thanksgiving Mixed Bonspiel which opens the season at the Victoria Curling Club.

Manager Tom Dickson reported Thursday that 55 rinks, 12 of them visiting quartets, have already filed entries. The limit is 64 rinks and the entry deadline is at noon next Wednesday.

Rinks, which have to include two women with one to play third rocks, will play through five events on a Chisholm draw. Play starts next Friday at 5 p.m. and all rinks will play their first game that evening with four draws scheduled. Finals will be held on Thanksgiving Day afternoon, Monday, Oct. 11.

Armstrong said Esks are in top shape after the 9-3 victory at Hamilton, which followed a 40-1 licking by Ottawa Rough Riders three days earlier.

"It takes something like that to get it (the Ottawa game) out of their minds," he said.

Canadian Open Hits $200,000

MONTREAL (UPI) — Canada will host two major professional golf tournaments in 1967, its centennial year, and both will offer prize money totalling $200,000.

This was assured Thursday night when the Montreal city council approved a plan whereby the city will participate in the 1967 Canadian Open by (a) doubling the prize money to $200,000; (b) spending upwards of $250,000 to improve its municipal course and bring it up to PGA and Royal Canadian Golf Association standards; and (c) allowing the RCGA to pocket the admissions.

Previously it was announced that the $200,000 Carling world's will be held in Toronto the same year.

The latest move was made to bring still another major entertainment spectacle to Montreal and thus add to the attractiveness of the 1967 world's fair (Expo '67) which will be staged on a man-made island in the middle of the St. Lawrence River.

The announcement was made jointly Thursday night by city executive chairman Lucien Saulnier, an avid golfer himself, the RCGA and the House of Seagram which underwrites the Canadian Open each year.

Seagram made it clear the $200,000 purse "was for one year only" and said it would revert to $100,000 in 1968.

Also on hand at the city hall announcement was Jack Tutill, field director for the PGA, who surveyed the course earlier this year and declared it could be brought up to championship standards in the next two years. Work on the municipal course situated in the city's east end will begin almost immediately.

to get it into championship shape for '67. The RCGA has arranged for a consultant from the PGA of America to work with its own architect staff in advice and supervise all the changes and improvements necessary. Tutill examined the course Wednesday.

The national event was last staged in Montreal at Pinegrove two years ago. Last March the Seagram boosted the purse to $100,000 in time for Toronto Mississauga's staging of the 1965 open. Next year it will be held at Vancouver's Sloughness club.

Alberni Inlet, from Polly Point to the mouth of the Somass, and Nahmint Bay, have been closed to fishing, effective today, as the big black tyees congregate at the river mouths waiting for rain so that they can start their spawning death runs.

But this shouldn't prove much detriment to tyee fishermen in Sunday's derby for the 100 qualifiers in the Alberni Valley ladder derby.

They and any other tyee fishermen will still have all of the Alberni Inlet below Polly Point, about 1½ miles down Inlet, to fish the tyee and the big coho which are showing in the Inlet. This means the popular spots . . . Lone Tree Point, China Creek, Cous Creek, Franklin River areas will still be open.

Cowichan Bay fishing at the weed line has been closed, but this again makes for little hardship and it will probably be opened again for the three-day Thanksgiving weekend derby.

Sooke River, from the mouth of De Mamiel Creek just above the picnic grounds to the mouth of the Sooke River has been closed to all fishing, including trout, for the protection of the spring salmon run.

Campbell River is closed to all fishing from the Tyee Spit to the Elk Falls until Nov. 16.

Commercial salmon fishing stops from William Head to north of Campbell River . . . areas 13 to 19 . . . today until April 14, except the International Pacific Salmon Commission still has control on areas 17, 18 and 19 for pink and sockeye salmon fishing.

It did authorize one day of that Fraser River mouth netting this week and might authorize fishing again next week to permit harvesting of late runs of pinks.

In Juan de Fuca Strait area 20, from William Head to Bonilla Point, north of Port Renfrew, the netting fleet had three days of fishing and no decision has yet been reached as to next week's netting time, if any. We watched close to 200 gillnetters head past Sooke, to the fishing grounds Sunday, and realized why sports fishermen are having to scratch fish for any coho at all. We got skunked Sunday and we saw two beach neighbors with only one fish each.

Juan de Fuca Strait fishing, beyond William Head . . . area 20 . . . will be open for commercial salmon fishing until Oct. 31. Netting times are now under jurisdiction of the federal fisheries department and the netters are picking up the coho runs with little apparent consideration for conservation.

Sports fishing for coho salmon is getting ever closer to the river mouths.

Wednesday morning, fishing with Bruce Colegrave, we picked up three button-sized coho on bucktail in the middle of Cowichan Bay, but fisheries told us that was the best catch in the sports fleet that day.

How we did it will be subject of Sunday's column.

Paul Jones and Bud Dunnett also got a couple of beauties.

The Cowichan Bay coho are there, but the bite is spotty. From now on it should get better and better.

Now is the time to bucktail for coho in Saanich Inlet and Deep Cove waters.

There are big coho about. San Juan Bay at Port Renfrew has been giving up big ones for those using big Cowichan spinners and Ford Penders.

The big northers have hit Claytons, French Creek and Qualicum.

Bucktails flies are taking limits in a couple of hours at Qualicum.

Comox fishing off Little River and on to Bates Beach has been pretty good. Campbell River waters are giving up some big coho, but it has been exceptionally spotty. Salmon River waters have record size coho entering them and feeding in Kelsey Bay.

Trout fishing in lakes is getting a little better each day, but rain is needed for the rivers. Loveland and the Campbell Lakes have been good. Cowichan Lake has been fair to good on lake rolls and worms and dry fly in Marble Bay. There are lots of trout in upper reaches of Cowichan River, but the river is very low and fish spooky.

Great Central Lake has been good for trout.

Bull elk come into season south of Alberni Highway this weekend, from Oct. 2 to Oct. 24, and will remain in season north of Alberni Highway until Oct. 31, with an antlerless season for the northern section from Oct. 9 to Oct. 17. Ducks and pheasant come in Thanksgiving weekend.

Fish and game branch has secured its first prosecution this year for hunters not punching out their deer tags. Wesley Allan Mottishaw, 1228 Pembroke, was fined $25 or five days after Conservation Officer Jack Lenfesty found him cutting out his deer punch with a pair of scissors as the game officer approached. The deer was two or three hours dead.

Careless hunters on Vancouver Island have chalked up more than $1,000,000 timber loss black mark through forest fires already this season. Let's have extra special care and preserve our access arrangements. Hunters have been blamed for two forest fires this week, one near Kelsey Bay and one at Shaw Creek, one by a cigarette or lighted match and one by a campfire which wasn't doused, both inexcusable.

'On Threshold of Greatness'

Junior Hockey Hotbed

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia, short of natural ice but strong on indoor skating rinks, could become the hotbed of Canadian junior hockey. So says Gordon McLeod of New Westminster, commissioner of the Pacific Coast Junior Hockey League. He says B.C. junior hockey "is on the threshold of greatness" and just needs a push, and financial help, from a national hockey league team.

Vancouver is planning a 16,000-seat arena on city property, a major stipulation by NHL governors if Vancouver is to have an NHL team in time for the 1967-68 season. "B.C. could supply as many players to a Vancouver team as Quebec does to the Montreal Canadiens," McLeod said.

Frank Inda, the Basque-born 31-year-old who rode George Royal in both races at Woodbine, also felt the horse's weight and condition of the track had a bearing on the result.

Inda dropped George Royal to fourth in the five-horse field after leaving the starting gate, then battled his way close to Teardrop Lane through the backstretch.

He caught Teardrop Lane at the head of the stretch and seemed about to move into the lead, but the Vancouver horse paid $2.30 and $2.10 while Teardrop Lane, owned by F. M. Clark Jr. of Meadow Lake, Sask., finished third and returned $2.50.

The result disappointed a crowd of 5,763 that made George Royal a 1-9 favorite. There seemed little doubt George Royal would win after his near-rival, Sweet Lady Briar, owned by M. F. Bennett and W. A. Woods, both of Toronto, was scratched.

Teardrop Lane returned $29.20, $4.20 and $2.30 for the victory, in which she covered the distance in 1:47 1/5. George "And it's not as far away as most people think."

He said B.C. now has the third-highest registration of minor hockey players in Canada, and with the number of indoor rinks being built around the province, B.C. eventually could take the lead.

McLeod says he can see the day when players from the prairies will come to B.C. to play junior hockey, reversing the present trend.

"We could offer a lot more for junior players than they could possibly hope to get on the prairies," McLeod said. "There is more future here for youngsters in industry. When Vancouver gets an NHL team, this will also apply in hockey."

LAWNS

By far the cheapest and best fertilizer for your lawn and shrubs is weedfree topsoil. If applied as a top-dressing (one yard for every 600 sq. feet) it will after three yearly applications develop a thick and lasting turf that feels like a soft carpet. That is how good and lasting lawns used to be made in the days not so long ago when we had not yet heard of chemical fertilizers. Topdressed lawns are moreover far less vulnerable to weeds and, most important of all, require less watering. One 50-lb. bag of chemical fertilizer costing $4.00 contains only 8 pounds of plant food. In comparison, you can buy for the same $4.00 2,500 pounds of weedfree topsoil, of which every pound helps to build up a good lawn.

When buying topsoil insist upon soil free of weeds and clay. The cost of dewatering is such that apart from the health hazards involved it does not pay to buy topsoil containing seeds of weeds.

Two inches of weedfree topsoil are also minimum requirements for making a good weedfree new lawn. For best quality topsoil that is free of weeds and clay, contact:

1832 was just another year.

Until 1965.

Now 1832 is the name of a whisky. Gooderham's 1832 Fine Canadian Whisky. We didn't pull that date out of a hat. It's been in the back of our minds for about 133 years now. That's how long ago we started making whisky. (But you can read all about it on our label). 1832 is worth reading about. And worth tasting. Because well over a century of Gooderham's distilling experience goes into every bottle. What comes out is a whisky that goes down remarkably smooth. A light yet surprisingly mellow rye. On the rocks. With mixed drinks. With water. Wonderful isn't it? Here you thought 1965 was turning out to be just another year. Then 1832 came along.

Gooderham's have been distilling fine whiskies since 1832.

Motorist Big Hit at Movies

When Ronald Campbell came to a stop on Broughton Street on Sept. 10, behind him lay damage totalling $2,700.

Campbell, 1421 Brooke, came along Broughton to the Blanshard intersection. He hit a car and careened off into the side of the Royal Theatre.

The result was the damage and a $75 fine in Victoria court Thursday.

The damage to Campbell's car was $700, to the other car $1,000, and to the theatre $1,000, prosecutor Peter Birkett told Magistrate William Ostler.

Lucien Theberge, 2865 Carlow, was looking for a side street in stead of watching the road, and ran into the back of a parked bus.

Theberge told Magistrate Ostler in Saanich court his speed was about 30 miles an hour, but his eyes weren't on the road. There was $1,400 damage to his car and $100 to the bus.

He was fined $45 for careless driving.

Another careless driver in Saanich court was Wayne Layton, 5131 Santa Clara. He ran off Royal Oak Avenue and careened 282 feet along a ditch before coming to rest on a rock. He was fined $75.

Seventeen-year-old Ronald Letcher was remanded to Monday on two charges of theft under $50 and one of possession of stolen goods under $50.

He pleaded guilty to stealing a bottle of after-shave lotion valued at $5.75 from Eaton's on Sept. 3, two cartons of cigarettes valued at $7.20 from a parked car at the Empress Hotel on Sept. 13, and to be in the possession of a sweater knowing it was stolen.

Neil Murray was fined $150 for driving while under suspension. He was stopped Aug. 6 by city police on Douglas and said he wasn't under suspension.

Conditioning Not Rules Beat West

OSHAWA (CP) — Coach Jim Bishop of Oshawa Green Gaels said Thursday his team defeated New Westminster Salmonbellies for the Minto Cup because the Gaels were in better condition.

Bishop was replying to comments by the Salmonbellies' coach Keith Jackson that lacrosse is becoming a dirty game in Ontario and penalties are called for breathing heavily.

Jackson said he didn't think the difference in refereeing beat his team in the Canadian junior final but complained all contact was being taken from the game. Oshawa won the best-of-seven series 4-2.

Bishop said his team can play in either style—a running game as they are accustomed to do or a checking game in western style.

"It is easier to stand back and swing a stick than it is to run for 60 minutes."

"They came here claiming they were in condition and we weren't. It was our conditioning that beat them."

Premier and Mrs. Bennett at airport

Don't Vote Liberal!

Send 15 Socreds To Ottawa—Bennett

By TONY DILLON-DAVIS
"Ottawa needs waking up, and Social Credit members in Ottawa are just the people to do it," said Premier Bennett Thursday.

Mr. Bennett returned just before 10 p.m. Thursday from a tour of Britain, Italy and West Germany, and plans to consult with party officials about the federal election in the near future.

Mrs. Bennett, who accompanied the premier on part of his trip, returned with him. Rumors of an election deal between Mr. Bennett and Progressive Conservative party officials were dismissed by the premier with a terse "no agreement."

Mr. Bennett said he will work towards sending 15 Socred members to Ottawa.

"I'm going to be asking the people to rise above party politics and send non-partisan Social Credit members to Ottawa."

"If we had 15 Social Credit members in Ottawa they would help develop all Canada."

There are 22 B.C. seats

BE NON-PARTISAN

He said B.C.'s experience proves that "when you get a non-partisan government like the Social Credit government, you get things done."

"Nobody, but nobody should vote Liberal."

"We have never had a federal government in the 34 years since B.C. entered Confederation that has treated B.C. so poorly."

IMPORTANT TALKS

Mr. Bennett declined comment on possible deals with European industrial concerns, but noted he had carried on "important discussions" with bankers and industrialists.

His purpose in making the trip was "to expand B.C.'s foreign trade, since the federal government has done such poor job" of it.

He said the council was considering further action, but would not say what this was or when it would take place.

"If in fact there is no magistrate in Saanich, we will co-operate, but under protest. The administration of justice is not to be interfered with or hampered in any way, shape or form," he said.

The reeve felt the situation was a "delicate" one because "while we remain firm on the basic question, Saanich council does not want to make a travesty of court procedure."

The court situation will be discussed again Monday, at the next council meeting.

Court Moves Out

Saanich Co-operates 'But Under Protest'

Saanich council will co-operate, "but under protest," with the attorney-general's office in setting up a centralized magistrate's court, Reeve Hugh Curtis said Thursday following a closed meeting of the council.

Ship's Guns Cause Mild Stir

The guns on HMCS Sussexvale make powerful medicine—at least that's the way it appeared Thursday.

The Daily Colonist office received phone calls asking if an earthquake had hit the city. A later call to the Royal Canadian Navy disclosed HMCS Sussexvale had been on shake-down trials and occupied the firing range sometime during the morning.

Spot Check on Pilings

Old Empress' Feet Wet but Sturdy

By JIM BRAHAN

The grand old lady of Government Street — the Empress Hotel — at 59 years of age appears as steady on her underpinnings as she did when brand new.

The wooden pilings, upon which the foundations of the hotel rest, are as good now as the day they were driven deep into swampy earth to find solid footing. H. J. Hemming, chief engineer at the Empress, said Wednesday.

A survey is being conducted by engineers, architects, and other construction specialists on the foundations of the building to determine what will be done in renovating the structure.

"This is the first time the pilings have been examined since they were put in place in 1906," Mr. Hemming said.

He has been with the hotel's engineering department since 1919.

To make the examination, workers had to dig with hand shovels to a depth of approximately 15 feet beside the pilings, and then a sample of the piling was taken for testing.

From the odor coming from the blue clay mud unearthed during the excavation it was not hard to realize they were below sea level.

In the hotel foundation groups of approximately 28 pilings were capped with concrete about 30 inches deep and huge concrete piers were placed on top. More than 100 piers form the foundation of the hotel.

During the present survey the engineers are doing a spot check on the pilings under various piers.

The results of the survey will be given to a board of the Canadian Pacific Railway early next month, according to Mr. Hemming.
"The pilings will last another

100 years," said W. L. Ruffo of Maxwell Construction Company of Vancouver. "The wood will petrify before it ever rots."

Mr. Ruffo is supervising the workers during the survey.

He explained the wood is completely sealed in salt water, and there is no chance of any oxygen getting near the wood.

"After all these years the wood is actually pickled in brine," he said.

Hospitals Not Obsolete

Victoria Doctor Rejects 'Ridiculous' Report

By BILL STAVDAL

Royal Jubilee and St. Joseph's Hospitals aren't obsolete and inadequate, says Dr. Peter Banks, president of the B.C. Medical Association.

Dr. Banks, who practises in Victoria, Thursday denied the truth of a report of a committee of the B.C. Hospitals Association.

The report was presented this week at the association's convention in Vancouver, and blamed government and the community for inadequacies in B.C.'s five largest hospitals.

Dr. David M. Boyd, president of the Victoria Medical Society, said Thursday that he agrees "partly" with the report but added that Victoria's hospitals are constantly upgrading themselves.

NOT MODERN

The report says hospitals have failed to keep pace with advances in medicine that have made possible better patient care.

They lack modern equipment and some types of highly-trained personnel, the report charges.

FACTS KNOWN

Said Dr. Banks:

"It isn't a fair comment. There have been tremendous improvements in our hospitals in the time I've been here, and it's continuing all the time."

"There is much to be done, and it's being done."

"To castigate our hospitals is ridiculous."

BED AREAS

Dr. Boyd commented:

"The actual facts are well known. Hospitals are obsolete as soon as they are built, almost."

In Victoria, he said, there are obsolete bed areas. They have been noted in the report of the Victoria and District Hospitals Planning Council, along with other deficiencies, he said.

"There is a modicum of truth in this report. Where the blame lies I wouldn't like to say."

"Parts of the hospitals are out of date, but the whole hospitals aren't obsolete."

Placards carry bartenders' plea

Bartenders Picket Government Office

A token demonstration by representatives of 2,000 unemployed bartenders seeking government mediation in the beer strike was held here Thursday.

Demonstrators from the Vancouver, New Westminster and Vancouver Island locals of the Beverage Dispensers Union marched up and down outside the Douglas Building which houses the provincial labor department.

AFTER LUNCH

They arrived as government employees were streaming back to work after lunch. Labor Minister Peterson was out of town, but a spokesman for the demonstrators said no attempt to see the minister had been planned.

James Morrison, president of the union's Vancouver local 676, said the token group numbered 30, but there were only about one dozen demonstrators marching at any one time.

WANT TALKS

He said both sides in the lengthy dispute were now prepared to resume talks and it was up to the provincial labor department to mediate.

Failure by the government to step in much earlier, he said, was due to the fact that "is a dry government and a wet situation."

PLACARDS

David Ferguson, spokesman for Vancouver Island Local 513, said the token demonstration was organized to let government know how union members feel.

If more demonstrations are carried out in future, he said, they will probably be extended to other areas.

Placards carried by demonstrators said 2,000 unemployed bartenders ask the labor department to "demand" that brewery operators start negotiations for settlement of the dispute immediately.

Colonist Receipt Rescues Lost Little Old Lady

Little old lady lost.

She goes to the Victoria city police station, but all she can tell is her name.

But what's this? She carries a scrap of paper which just may give a clue to where she lives.

It is a Colonist receipt with the name, address and telephone number of the carrier who delivers her morning paper — Ralph Simonson of 548 Northcott.

Police took the hint and phoned Ralph's mum, Mrs. Nora Simonson, who is district circulation manager of her son's area.

She put an address to the name.

Result: Little old lady goes home — to Grant Manor, 998 Humboldt.

Effective Immediately

Cycle Tests Stiffened

Starting immediately, the government has announced stiffer road tests for B.C. motorcycle riders, coupled with a new system of licensing.

Provincial motor vehicles superintendent Ray Hadfield said two sets of road tests will now have to be taken by drivers who wish to operate both motorcycles and other forms of motor vehicles.

Effective today, all new licences issued by the branch will indicate whether the holder is qualified to drive motor vehicle or motorcycle or both.

Mr. Hadfield said it will take about five years before the 850,000 drivers' licences now issued in the province are covered. But new drivers, coming onto the province's roads in increasing numbers, will be covered immediately.

B.C. had more than 12,000 motorcycles as of last August, compared with 7,500 a year earlier.

Driver's tests on motorcycles will now include a skill test in which the applicant must successfully complete a number of figure-eight manoeuvres.

Officials will watch to see that he is capable of maintaining full control of his motorcycle while keeping his feet off the ground.

War on Poison

Canadian pharmacists will campaign for poison prevention campaign for poison prevention next week. The public education program will try to reduce an estimated 200,000 accidental poisonings in Canada each year.

New drivers will also be required to pass a test of braking skills by stopping on a line.

All learners' licences for motorcycleists will now forbid a learner to carry a passenger. Applicants who take tests on motorcycles and motor scooters will be limited to operating that kind of vehicle.

LESS SERIOUS

Mr. Hadfield said that the new compulsory safety helmets for motorcycle riders and passengers are proving their worth.

"It's hard to gauge the effect of the helmet, accurately. But medical men have told me the injuries are less serious," he said.

However, the August accident rate was up 90 per cent on 1964; 90 cyclists were injured compared to 47 in August, 1964.

$15 for All Aboard

Navy Pay Hike Immediate

Close to 2,200 seagoing officers and men of the Royal Canadian Navy here will pick up an extra $15 a month starting immediately.

The raise, known as "sea duty allowance" was announced in Ottawa Thursday after being approved by the government.

FOREIGN PAY

The payment, which represents an increase of $1,500,000 in the annual navy budget for the east and west coasts, will replace the foreign allowance of about $27,000 which was paid to ship's companies when away from Canada for 30 days or more. Ships' crews away less than 28 days didn't collect.

TIMING OBVIOUS

"This step is long overdue and resolves an inequity that has existed for some time," said the Esquimalt-Saanich Conservative member of the last Parliament, George Chatterton.

"It certainly will help improve the morale of our senior service from its lowest point in the history of the Royal Canadian Navy. I was going to say the timing is significant, but it hardly needed mentioning. It was so obvious."

ALL RANKS

The foreign service allowance ran $9.50 a month for leading seamen and under; $16.50 for chief petty officers; $17.50 for acting sub-lieutenant and $37.50 a month for the rank of captain. The new allowance of $15 a month applies equally to all ranks.

ALL SHIPS

It will be paid to ships' companies whether the ship is at sea or in port.

Ottawa says 68 per cent of the total will go to men with the rank of leading seaman and below. About 10,000 officers and men on the east and west coasts are eligible for the raise.

The new allowance has been authorized to compensate personnel in some degree for the demands that service in warships entails, the navy says.

Alumni Give Students Scholarships

Five scholarships totalling $1,250 were given to Greater Victoria students Thursday by the University of Victoria Alumni Association.

It was the first time the scholarships have been awarded. Winners of $250 each: Douglas K. Pearce, 891 Fullerton; Judith V. Cameron, 2983 Foul Bay; Barrie D. Turnham, 1151 McClure; Lorna May Stirling, 4968 Cordova Bay and Susan Laubenstein, 1270 Denman.

The scholarships are available annually to junior matriculation students entering the University of Victoria.

Victoria Man Hurt in Crash

A Victoria man is in fair condition in St. Joseph's Hospital today after his car went out of control and crashed into a ditch beside West Saanich Road, Thursday.

The mishap occurred shortly after 5 p.m. when Donald M. Curry, 3380 Quadra, tried to pass a vehicle then had to pull back because of on-coming traffic.

'End Cold War'

City NDP Picks Candidate

By IAN ARROL

J. Lloyd Brereton, 64, of 305 Windermere Place, was elected Thursday night as NDP candidate for Victoria riding in the Nov. 8 federal election.

He was chosen by the 40 in attendance at NDP headquarters, 1316 Government Street, over the only other contestant for nomination, Richard I. Gravel of the English department, University of Victoria.

Mr. Brereton is the retired director of local examinations, Cambridge University.

KEY ISSUE

International affairs — particularly the situation in Viet Nam — is seen by Mr. Brereton as the key issue in the campaign.

"We of the NDP object wholeheartedly to the American policy in South Viet Nam," he said.

"It is time we moved toward the end of the cold war, which is resulting in a stagnation paralyzing every forward movement in every country."

LEAD NATIONS

"Instead of talking about a nuclear club, Canada should lead a club of nations that will not have nuclear arms on their soil."

Other policies Mr. Brereton will champion in his campaign are "an all out medical scheme and the bringing of Canadian resources back into Canadian hands."

Mr. Brereton has just recently published a book called Exams, Where Next?

Central Saanich firemen spent a sleepless night as they battled a blaze at Brenwood Hardware overnight Thursday.

The blaze, which apparently started in the rear of the store, destroyed the building.

High Heels Out Of Shoe Picture

Heads and feet were the stars Wednesday evening at Holyrood House when the Queen Alexandra Solarium Junior League presented a fall shoe fashion show.

All the latest styles in footwear for fashion conscious women were shown by H. E. Munday and Sons, and modelled by members and friends of the Junior League. Completing the "tip to toe" look at the show were elegant hairstyles created by George Molnar of the Charming Lady.

As model after model walked down the ramp displaying every type of shoe from comfortable stacked heel walkers to high-heeled sandals it was evident that the crescent and rounder toe is here to stay for awhile.

The pointed toe is definitely out. As for heels the slender illusion model was much in evidence in the "nine to five" styles. It appeared again in the evening shoes such as the illusion heel with gold lame fabric worn by one of the models.

Another attractive evening sandal modelled was the illusion heel sling in gold on black mesh — just the accessory to dress up that "little black nothing" gown so popular in this year's wardrobe.

For those who prefer the higher heel — fast fading from the fashion picture in footwear — there are still a number of elegant high-heeled shoes being made for evening wear. Two examples, modelled at the show, were a high-heeled sandal in black peau de sole with strip straps and a sling pump in silver metallic fabric just right for special dress-up occasions.

Popular features in today's shoes, both for every day wear and dress-up, were seen in the VANCOUVER (CP) — The Greater Vancouver Visitors and Convention Bureau says more than 1,000,000 tourists have visited B.C. to date this year. It is an increase of more than 14 per cent over the corresponding period last year.

IN THE MALL AT MAYFAIR

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 16-year-old nervous wreck (male type). The trouble is my parents.

A typical day at our house starts something like this:

I usually get up before my folks and fix breakfast. When I am just about half through my folks come into the kitchen. If I don't say "Good morning" first they say I am rude. If I happen to be reading the paper they say I am selfish because I should have left it alone until they get down.

Next my father complains because the coffee is weak or the eggs are hard or the toast is burned. My mother yells back that if he didn't have something to complain about he would be miserable.

After breakfast either my mother or dad can't find something and each one blames the other for misplacing it. To look at my folks you'd think they were the happiest people in the world. My dad makes about four times the average man's salary, (about $25,000 a year). When company is at the house they are sweet as can be.

They never argue over anything important. It's always silly stuff. What can I do short of slipping tranquilizers into their coffee? — THE SHOCK LOOK.

Dear Shock: You can say good morning first and hand over the paper immediately. Then you can leave the kitchen so your father can knock the coffee, eggs and toast privately. You can donate five minutes every morning to the Treasure Hunt as your contribution to family unity.

Finally, when you get married and have a family of your own you can remember how it was at your house and vow to do better so YOUR teen-agers won't have to write to me about YOU.

Dear Ann Landers: You seemed surprised when the woman wrote to ask why the doctors insisted that her friend have a blood test as soon as he was checked into the hospital. Why? Most people who have little or no contact with hospitals don't have the vaguest idea of what goes on inside. They are filled with misinformation, apprehension and old wives tales.

I've worked in hospitals since I was 16 and the ignorance of the general public is astounding. It's amazing how many folks think a blood test means VD, a cardiogram means a heart attack and an X-ray means cancer or TB. When they are asked to list next of kin they are sure it means they are not expected to live. It's too bad the general public isn't better informed. It would save a great deal of needless anxiety.

Please tell people through your column, Ann Landers, that hospitals are highly organized institutions and that they must be operated in a way that enables them to give the best possible service to the greatest number of people. This means they have to have all sorts of information as a matter of routine. — IN THE KNOW

Dear In the Know: Thanks for an excellent letter. But I still wish someone IN THE KNOW would tell me why they give hospital patients sleeping pills at night and then awaken them at 6:00 A.M. to wash their faces.

Day-Price Vows

California Honeymoon

A honeymoon trip to California followed the recent marriage of Judy Kathleen Price and Mr. Marvin Archibald Noble Day in First United Church. Arrangements of pink and white gladioli decorated the church when Rev. Marvin Fowler heard the marriage vows for the daughter of Mrs. Kathleen Price, 490 Vancouver Street, and Mr. James E. Price, Edmonton, and the son of Mrs. J. Day, 1176 Yates Street, and the late Mr. Day.

A half-sovereign ring which belonged to her great-grandmother fulfilled the tradition of "something old" for the bride, who was lovely in a gown of tulle and silk with a full cathedral train which swept back from a bridal bow at the waistline. The bodice featured a jewel neckline and lily-point sleeves and were enhanced with embroidered lace appliques. Similar accents were on the skirt. Her tiered veil of silk illusion net misted from a floral rosette and she carried a gardenia bouquet, edged with pink rosebuds.

Mr. David J. Price, Vancouver, gave his sister in marriage.

Miss Sally Price, maid of honor, and bridesmaid, Mrs. J. Morris, wore gowns of deep pink tulle de soie with toning brocade bodices. Their only jewelry was pearls, gift of the bride, and they wore pink organza headpieces. Gladioli and pink carnations were in their bouquets.

Mr. Vernon Morris was best man and ushering were Mr. Ted Floor and Mr. David Day.

Pink and white gladioli and pink rosebuds decorated the head table at the reception which followed in Club Soho. Mr. Horace Smith proposed the toast to the bride.

For travelling the bride chose a pink boucle wool suit with wide toning fox cuffs. White accessories, a gardenia corsage and pearls, gift of the groom, completed her costume. The newlyweds are now making their home at 409 Quebec Street.

Gail Craig Honored

The Phi Zeta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi honored one of its members, Miss Gail Craig, whose marriage to Mr. David Ackerman takes place Oct. 9, with a miscellaneous shower. Members present were Mrs. L. Cofield, Misses D. Hooper, D. Falkner, D. Wilson, V. Bowden-Green, P. St. Dennis, J. Stallybrass, D. Clarke, Lynn Wells and A. Haley.

Present were Mrs. D. Marks, Mrs. D. Wilson, Mrs. R. Mulrhead, Mrs. D. Cofield, Mrs. C. Ackerman, Mrs. R. Craig, Mrs. J. Hope, Mrs. S. Milligan and Misses B. Bonner, M. Mulrhead, B. Savage, M. Hall and J. Williams.

Green Found Neutral

LONDON (Reuters).—Red stands for strength, stimulation and warmth; blue for masculinity, seriousness and calmness; yellow for youth and weakness; while green is a neutral color without any striking attributes. That, at any rate, is the classification given by an international market research survey published here.

The survey was carried out in eight countries, through interviews with 600 British, American, Dutch, French, Italian, Swedish and Swiss housewives. The aim was to discover what package colors suit certain products in the various countries. French and Dutch housewives associated a red wrapping with toys and jewelry. But red made the Swiss think of confectionery and the Americans of cosmetics. Blue packing suggested detergents to all nationalities. But the Swiss also associated it with textiles and haberdashery. France, Holland and Sweden thought green packages should contain cosmetics, but to Swiss housewives they suggested nothing in particular. The Swiss were again the exception with the yellow packing, which they associated with cosmetics, while it made the women of most of the other countries think of food. Red suggested old age, dullness and dirt to the British, masculinity and ugliness to the French, humor to the older Swedish housewives and cleanliness to the Swiss. Blue meant youth to young British housewives, but old age to older ones. The French thought it rather ugly, while five European countries found it old-fashioned. But to United States housewives it was the most modern of the four colors. Yellow was distinctly disliked by the Swiss, suggested cleanliness and interest to the British, cheapness and old age to the Americans, and modernity to the Italians and Swedes. Green was the color which housewives generally agreed was unevocative, though young Swiss thought it masculine and old Swiss thought it feminine. Britons found it particularly humorous, Americans particularly expensive.

Appeal Pops Questions

The coming residential census for the United Appeal of the Community Chest of Greater Victoria, which begins Oct. 18, raises questions concerning the various agencies which benefit from it. Each day for nine days a question and answer will be printed. Here is question No. 1.

Question — Why do youth-serving organizations, such as the Boy Scouts, the Boys' Club and the YM-YWCA, which are not charitable organizations, participate in the United Appeal?

Answer — The United Appeal has never confined its activities to the so-called charity field.

Among its 23 member agencies are those providing services to the aged, as well as to youth, those whose function is planning for all types of social programs and those whose responsibility lies in recreation.

There are, of course, services available to the sick, the handicapped and the troubled. All of these services must be provided in any balanced program designed to meet the total needs of our citizens. Also, our youth-serving and recreational agencies stress prevention, which can be many times cheaper than cure.

It is true that some youth-serving groups collect membership dues and other fees from boys and girls who take part in the programs offered. But it is also true that these fees do not nearly cover the costs of the services provided. If fees were increased to cover the deficit, many children would be unable to join these organizations.

The United Appeal allocations make possible the provision of high-calibre services at a cost within the reach of every family. In special cases of need, memberships are provided free of charge and in strict confidence.

Another important reason for the inclusion of such agencies in its membership is the United Appeal's responsibility to live up to its name.

It is, therefore, continually striving to add more agencies to its roster, not fewer.

To include some agencies and exclude others, all of whom enjoy an equal right to public support, would be to deny one of the first principles of the appeal.

Haida Tray Bears Invitation to Fair

OTTAWA (CP). — Dispensing Indian-decorated wooden trays to Ottawa's diplomatic corps, Attorney-General Robert Bonner made a bid on behalf of British Columbia Thursday for international support for his province's 1967 trade fair.

Mr. Bonner and B.C. Trade Minister Ralph Lofmark threw a dinner at the Chateau Laurier Hotel and showed the foreign representatives a 14-minute film of the potentials of their province and particularly of its triangular trade fair, held at the Pacific National Exhibition fair grounds in Vancouver.

BIG BUSINESS

The bid was frankly through the diplomats to their governments and to international big business to come to the West Coast province of Canada with their wares early in the spring of 1967. The province will meet them with buyers brought into Vancouver from throughout the province ready to place orders.

As Mr. Bonner explained it to an afternoon press conference, B.C. is Canada's biggest earner of foreign exchange through its exports of lumber, minerals, fish, oil and gas, and electric power.

SPECIAL SHOW

But recognizing trade is a two-way street, the province makes this effort every three years to encourage Canadian and particularly British Columbian buying from abroad. The next fair will be a special one because 1967 is Canada's Confederation centennial year.

The ambassadors and other heads of foreign missions in Ottawa attending the banquet were sent trays of B.C. cedar, with Haida Indian graphics painted in enamels. Similar dinners

Two-Day Convention

Pension Plans Head Agenda

A two-pronged objective on pensions comes before the two-day convention of the 8,500-strong B.C. Government Employees Association, opening at the Empress Hotel today.

A resolution from the provincial civil servants' executive calls for a pension plan to incorporate Canada Pension Plan benefits, but regardless of integration, at least to compare with employee schemes operated by the federal or any other provincial government.

AVERAGE EARNINGS

Quebec, Ontario, Saskatchewan and Alberta at present all have pension schemes for civil servants rated as better than the B.C. plan.

The B.C. executive's own pension formula is geared toward a maximum 75 per cent pension based on the final-average-earnings principle.

STACKING OUT

President D. Lytle of Victoria said the 18-man executive did not favor a stacking of pension plans which could result in a person receiving a higher pension than his working wage.

"We don't feel this is good, either psychologically or economically," he said.

Official Gets A Nod

City Manager Dennis Young, who has taken many an unwarranted knock over the past few months, received a pat on the back at a meeting of city council Thursday.

A letter from Victoria United Soccer Club praised the manager for the prompt and efficient way he handled a request from the club asking temporary accommodation at Royal Athletic Park for a cup game here a couple of weeks ago.

The whole affair was handled well, the club said, and the manager was to be thanked.

In view of the fact that the manager has taken some undeserved criticism he should be commended in this instance, said Ald. Michael Griffin.

Aldermen and the mayor agreed and smiles and nods were directed in Mr. Young's direction.

Strike Eases

NEW YORK (UPI). — The first major break came Thursday in the shutdown of six major daily newspapers when the Mailers Union and the Publishers Association of New York reached agreement on the key contract issue of job security.

The agreement opened the door to negotiation on 17 less knotty issues in the dispute that has taken priority over the original American Newspaper Guild strike against the New York Times. Both sides indicated that the remaining issues, including pensions and hiring priority, could be worked out without too much difficulty.

Coroner Scores Inefficiency

By PETER TAYLOR
NANAIMO—Coroner Russ Inkster Thursday called for an investigation into what he called "inefficiency" in the Motor Vehicle Branch in Victoria.

The charge followed a Wednesday night inquest at which evidence showed the branch issued a licence suspension on a driver March 11, and did not follow it up until the day of the inquest into the driver's death this week. "How can someone let seven months go by without asking police to pick up the licence? I don't know," said the coroner.

He said "this justifies some sort of investigation." The coroner said, "I'm quite sure the attorney-general's department would not condone anything like this, because they don't operate that way."

"If this has happened here in Nanaimo, I wonder in how many other B.C. centres it has happened."

The inquest was held into the death of Roy Robert Humphreys, 27, of Long Lake Motel.

The jury found the victim died in a head-on smash three miles north of Nanaimo.

During the course of police evidence it was learned the

Motor Vehicle Branch had issued a notice of suspension on March 11.

Humphreys died Sept. 3 and the branch was notified on the day of the inquest. Nanaimo RCMP received a letter from the principal clerk in the driver's improvement division, asking the police to serve a second notice on the dead man.

The March 11 suspension was to be in effect until he proved financial responsibility for a previous accident.

The Sept. 28 letter stated: "We have no conclusive proof that this letter (March 11) was delivered, and due to this we are unable to issue a certification of suspension."

"In order that we may amend our files accordingly, we would appreciate your co-operation in delivering the suspension of Roy Robert Humphreys."

In his evidence, Barry Galsky, Kokilah, said he saw Humphreys coming towards him on his side of the road.

He started to steer towards the centre line, but Humphreys did the same thing. He had been stopped for two seconds before Humphreys finally hit him head-on, he said.

Medical evidence showed the victim had a blood alcohol content of .24, well above the level where impairment is considered to begin.

Humphreys had been involved in an accident four years ago two miles south of where he had met his death. Since 1963 he had been found guilty of going through a stop sign twice and of careless driving.

A case is presently being heard in civil court against the traffic victims indemnity fund, as a result of Humphreys' first accident.

Leniency Helps Motorists

LAKE COWICHAN—Motor Vehicles Branch Superintendent Ray Hadfield said the branch often shows "leniency" to drivers who might otherwise lose their licences.

He said licences are often returned to drivers who need to drive for employment.

"We are getting some good results from this method," he said.

"Our actions are subject to appeals in court, and this tempers our whole approach."

Mr. Hadfield commented: "The rights of people who drive must be preserved. But the rights of other people, the innocent people on the highways, must be given equal consideration."

Addressing Cowichan Lake District Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Hadfield said "we must steer a road between these two groups of people."

Mr. Hadfield stated "our job causes great strain and problems within the branch to keep pace and control the situation, and to regulate parts of the automotive industry."

"For the past four or five years we have also been licensed and bonding in the motor vehicle industries, and in the future we hope to control the regulating of driving schools."

Speaking on the motor vehicle accident situation, Mr. Hadfield said "I wish it was as easy to tackle as the other situations in the department. On one hand we are dealing with cars, trucks and machinery; on the other side we are dealing with people, their different habits and personalities."

Bulk Oil Supply Studied

A move to supply Vancouver Island lighthouses with commercially delivered bulk fuel oil will be studied by government officials during a four-day round-the-island helicopter trip.

The trip by department of transport and public works officials, will determine what additional facilities will be needed to pump oil from commercial tankers into storage tanks in the district's lighthouses, practically all of which are in exposed areas.

Last year the department experimented with bulk loading, using the icebreaker Camasli as the tanker and a work barge with carried the oil ashore and pumped it into storage tanks.

Better than 70,000 gallons of diesel oil was discharged at 22 of the district's lighthouses.

Originally, the oil, which is used by the huge diesel motors that blow foghorns and keep the light going, had to be unloaded by hand in 40-gallon barrels and landed in work boats.

Light house superintendent Capt. William Exley estimated the conversion from barrel to bulk would result in a saving of 30 cents a gallon, and commercial bulk delivery would result in greater additional savings.

The department eventually hopes to have to make only one delivery a year, and further in the future, one delivery every 18 months.

In increasing bulk storage facilities at several lighthouses, the department has installed special easy-to-handle fibreglass tanks weighing only 1,000 pounds and holding 2,000 gallons of oil.

Colorful Global Career

Envoy, Author Sir Robert Dies at 92

Diplomat, writer, and patron of the arts, Sir Robert Kirkine Holland 1131 Beach Drive, died Thursday at 92.

Job Choice Subject Of Survey

Oak Bay Junior High School students will soon take part in a national survey aimed at finding out how and why people choose their careers.

Grades 9 and 10 and their teachers will be quizzed intensively in late October or early November, chief inspector of schools William D. Reid said Thursday.

The survey is sponsored by the federal labor department in co-operation with provincial departments of education. It will reach about 150,000 students in 400 secondary schools.

In B.C., 23 junior high schools are participating. Rudyard T. Kipling, principal of Oak Bay Junior High, attended a briefing with other principals Tuesday in Vancouver.

Sir Robert began his career as a barrister in London, England, where he was born.

In 1903, he joined the India Civil Service, where he served until he was transferred to Muscat, on the Arabian Peninsula, as political agent and consul from 1908 to 1910.

In 1914, he was back in India, this time as deputy secretary to the Indian government.

GREAT WAR

In 1915 he went to war, carrying dispatches for the Mesopotamian Field Force until 1917.

Then it was back to India, to serve as officiating political secretary to the government of India, and from 1925 to 1931, as a member of the Indian Council.

MOVED TO CANADA

His last diplomatic post was in Siam, where he was judicial advisor to the Siamese government from 1932 to 1935.

Sir Robert then moved to Canada, where he was chairman of the Canadian Drama Award from 1938 to 1959.

TWO BOOKS

He wrote many articles for newspapers and magazines and two books, Japan's Flying Start in the Pacific, and Post-War Pacific.

There will be a private funeral at Hayward's Funeral Chapel.

Looters Pick What's Left From Houses

MANILA (UPI)—Wary survivors of the Mt. Taal Volcano disaster braved the threat of new eruptions Thursday to return to their villages on the scorched island, only to find that looters had been there before them.

Most of those who returned discovered that what little the Tuesday explosion of the volcano had spared, the looters had taken.

As the islanders picked through the ash and mud, scientists warned the "danger was still great." They said, however, that the volcano's eruptions Thursday were less intense than those of two days ago.

The Red Cross and the Social Welfare Administration confirmed 150 dead. The Philippine Constabulary, however, listed 200.

Nude Wedding, Cricket In BBC TV Take-Off

LONDON (UPI)—A British Broadcasting Corp. television film featuring two women clad in a G-string and two pieces of tape each may never be exposed to the nation's viewers.

Nude As Nature Intended was filmed for the new satire show BBC-2. It is intended as a take-off on the nude movies to be seen in the seamer movie houses about London.

"It was all rather a giggle," said Beryl Reid, one of the two stars.

NO CLOTHES ON
"I was supposed to be the secretary of a nudist colony—rather prim, but with no clothes on."

"I started off full of inhibitions and wore a ski-tight corselet," she added. "When I saw every one running around with nothing on, I took the corselet off."

"I think there will have to be some careful editing. They can show everything they took."

NO DECISION
A BBC spokesman emphasized no decision had been taken about showing the film. "We cannot say at this stage whether the film will be shown or not," the spokesman said.

Comedian Losing Identity

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Comedian Don Adams, who admits "I'm a bit of a Klutz myself," is fearful lest he loses himself in the character of Maxwell Smart, the morose spy in a new television series.

Diminutive and every bit as beady-eyed in person as he is in the Get Smart show, Adams is the kind of loser who spills martinis on the hostess and loses money in pay telephones.

If a meteor landed on earth, Adams would be an odd-on favorite to catch it with his head.

LIVES THE ROLE

"I'm beginning to become Maxwell Smart, and you might as well know it," Adams said.

"My wife, Dorothy, says I keep bringing him home with me and I don't think that's good."

The other day Adams loaded two full garbage cans into the open trunk of his sports car, planning to drop them at the curb. But it wasn't until he arrived at the studio that Adams realized the fragrant refuse was still with him.

RETURNS GARBAGE

Like his counterpart in the NBC-TV series, Adams was equal to the occasion. He turned around, drove home and with great nonchalance deposited the cans at the curb while Dorothy looked down pensively.

Adams has overcome other difficulties. For instance, his real name is Donald James Yarny, which he changed in 1954 after crashing Arthur Godfrey's Talent Scouts show.

His appearance with Godfrey led to guest spots with Steve Allen, Garry Moore, Jimmy Dean, Johnny Carson and Perry Como. Last year he was a bungling house detective on the Bill Dana show.

Newspaper Advertising Stimulates Buying

What's the use of advertising?

well, it makes Sally Campbell's life a lot easier

Advertising, it's been said, keeps trying to foist off on us a lot of things we don't need. Like refrigerators, freezers, electric floor polishers—and automatic washers.

It's true we don't absolutely have to have these things. In a sense, they're luxury items. But just try to tell Sally Campbell or any other housewife, that her automatic washer is a luxury.

Oh, we could probably get along without cars and vacuum cleaners and electric lights if we had to. Millions of people did for many thousands of years. But why should we? Is scientific progress something that should be kept secret?

Advertising, you see, is just a way of letting all of us know what's new and different and better in the world today. It's a way of telling us about the things that can help make our lives a little easier, a lot more fun.

And when you buy an automatic washer, a new refrigerator, or a car, you raise your standard of living a notch or two. You put money in circulation. And you help create jobs. So everybody's standard of living goes up.

It's something to think about next time you pick up your daily newspaper. The ads you see there are actually helping you maintain and improve your standard of living. And they're making all of our lives a lot easier. Just ask Sally Campbell.

Satchmo May Put Down His Horn

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Louis Armstrong, who has been blowing the sweetest trumpet this side of Gabriel for 52 years, may retire next year.

"I got 12 weeks off next January," says old Satch, "and I may just dig this retirement jazz for size."

Of course, an extremely busy schedule at the moment may make retirement look delightful.

UP COAST

He was interviewed between rehearsals for a Dean Martin television show after having played the night before at Disneyland until 2 a.m.

Louis was about to take off on 42 one-nighters that will take him up the Pacific coast to Alaska and then down into Texas and Louisiana.

VIET NAM

"Man," says Louis, "there just ain't no days off. Just looking at that itinerary makes me tired."

Armstrong and Martin

There's also a possibility that he will go to South Viet Nam and play for the troops.

"It's up to the state department," he says. "Pops will swing anyplace."

Louis even blew behind the Iron Curtain.

"I had crowds in Budapest like I did in Ghana," beams Satchmo. "Those cats all swing alike."

At age 65 Satch's health is good and so is his lip — which is never given a rest. He blows a show almost every night and never gives a rest.

practices every day, a ritual he began as a boy trumpeter in a New Orleans reform school.

HELP OTHERS

"When I retire," says Louis, "I'll spend my time helping other young boys like I was helped myself."

"There's a lot of things I can do like spending my time listening to other performers and visiting people. Just having myself a ball."

"And I got a nice home in Corona, N.Y., and I also got me a young wife who says she'll cook me anything I want to eat."

"And, daddy, that's livin'."

NO MORE

If Louis should decide to retire—and Lord knows, he deserves it—it will be a pity.

Armstrong, who got his first jazz band job in 1917, played the riverboats that took the new music from New Orleans to the speakeasies of Chicago. In his prime, every note he hit was sheer perfection.

Peace Institute Gets UN Grant

The Canadian Peace Research Institute—listed $24,000 in contributions from Victoria residents when it was organized in 1962—received a grant this week from the United Nations for $8,000.

Purpose of the grant, made by the UN Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization, is to contribute toward the cost of preparing and publishing the Institute's peace research abstracts.

UNIQUE
The abstracts are a unique Canadian initiative, said the Canadian National Commission for UNESCO.

"Brief summaries of research bearing on peace and war are prepared, catalogued and published so that scientists may be quickly aware of work done and conclusions reached elsewhere."

ONTARIO HQ
At present, 23,000 abstracts have been prepared by volunteers in 12 countries. The master collection is held by the institute at its headquarters in Clarkson, Ont.

"Contributions to this and other projects continue from a number of people in Victoria," Professor C. S. Burchill, national president of the World Federalists of Canada, said Thursday.

CO-OPERATED
In addition to the World Federalists, the Victoria units of Voice of Women and the Society of Friends (Quakers) co-operated to raise money. "A project on which material has been gathered, awaiting publication, is a study on the economic consequences of disarmament," Mr. Burchill said.

Bad Russian Crop

Possibility Grows Reds Will Buy U.S. Wheat

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP)—A dilemma may be shaping up for the Soviet Union: whether or not to buy wheat from the United States.

Observers here believe the U.S.S.R. may face such a choice if, as many now expect, the domestic wheat crop falls far short of state requirements.

AMERICAN CARRIERS
Some months ago the word was reported to have gone out from the Kremlin that the situation in Viet Nam would preclude Soviet purchases from the U.S.

This was apart from the problem of cost resulting from a U.S. requirement that half the commercial wheat shipments to Soviet-bloc countries must be transported in American carriers.

REVAMP BUYING
Recently there have been reports that Washington might rescind the rule. That effectively would make it easier for the Russians to shelve their political misgivings and revamp their buying policies, particularly if the Soviet harvest is a really poor one.

The huge Soviet purchase of Canadian wheat this summer was the first concrete indication that the Soviet crop was disappointing.

POOR CROP
Later a Soviet spokesman confirmed that the crop outlook was indeed poor, and there have since been periodic hints of this in the press.

On Aug. 23 the Communist party newspaper Pravda noted, crop reported, may be the only in a lead editorial that the other source of substantial supplies was not good for farm-plans.

It criticized officials and workers for grain losses resulting from faulty organization and harvesting techniques and said the "unsatisfactory" crop this year made it necessary to conserve supplies.

A week later Pravda reported that eastern Kazakhstan had produced only 58 per cent of its allotment, the Ural region 87 per cent.

SPRING WHEAT
All regions cited by the newspaper are important for the spring wheat crop which accounts for most of the Soviet Union's production. The situation in spring wheat areas west of the Volga is believed somewhat more favorable.

However, from the fragments of information available, some observers have concluded that over-all prospects are even worse than they appeared at the time of Canada's big sale.

WORST WEATHER
They surmise that east of the Volga the U.S.S.R. may have been hit by the worst possible combination of weather—the drought in the growing season and excessive moisture at harvest time.

The Soviet Union has already concluded agreements to purchase wheat from France and Argentina in smaller quantities than from Canada. Australia's crop prospects are shaky. The United States, with a bumper

New York Jittery But Still Free Of Racial Strife

By AUSTIN SMITH

NEW YORK (AP)—The city that led off last year's round of Negro riots in the United States with a bloody four-day binge is jittery this year, but that fact isn't apparent from walking the streets.

It comes to light, however, whenever civil rights marches are planned, when racial trouble occurs elsewhere in the country, or when police are involved in serious incidents with Negroes.

Then authorities strengthen their forces in Harlem and Bedford-Stuyvesant, the Negro areas in Manhattan and Brooklyn respectively, where one person was killed and millions of dollars in property were damaged in July, 1964.

New York has been quiet so far. No incidents have reached alarming proportions.

Even a protest march called by the Congress of Racial Equality after a white policeman killed a Negro in Brooklyn—an incident strikingly similar to the one which preceded last year's riots—drew only 150 marchers and almost no spectators.

SLIGHT CHANGES
The city has instituted few striking changes in its attempt to deal with its racial-relations problems.

The most obvious—and they are given a great deal of credit for the peace so far this year—were the appointments of three Negro policemen to key posts in Harlem.

Civil rights groups hailed one long-sought goal several months ago when Police Commissioner Michael J. Murphy unexpectedly resigned to take another job.

The Congress of Racial Equality in particular had long been critical of Murphy, claiming he refused to view Negro-police relations as a sociological problem, rather than strictly as a police problem.

Murphy, however, had the backing of Mayor Robert F. Wagner, and he denied that Negroes were treated any differently by the police.

Murphy's successor, Vincent L. Broderick, has repeatedly told his 26,000-man force that a man who cannot treat all persons equally has no business in a police uniform.

Both commissioners opposed CORE's demands for a civilian police review board to deal with charges of alleged police brutality.

MORE UNITY
Other changes have taken the form of stepped-up poverty and social help programs, and somewhat greater unity among the numerous Harlem leaders, who were often publicly at each other's throats in the past.

No one is saying these things will prevent a riot, but they are given credit for the peace so far.

The Amsterdam News, Harlem's largest Negro newspaper, ran an editorial recently crediting social action projects.

In Harlem, where resentment was directed both at the police and at the white merchants who own the great majority of Harlem's numerous small stores and services, there has been little change in the business community.

The number of Negro sales clerks and Negro-owned businesses is virtually the same.

Negroes tend to believe that white store owners have no interest in the community whose economy they control. The common cry is, "They made their money in Harlem and take it home to white neighborhoods."

Two men who manage national chain store branches in Harlem add that a shifting of more Negro policemen to Harlem seems to have lessened tension. White policemen, they say, also appear to be more understanding of the problem here than they were a year ago.

City Vetoes Medical Building

Aldermen stood by their policy against spot zoning Thursday denying an application for a building project which, they admitted, would improve a city corner described as an "eyesore."

The application of Dr. G. Scott Wallace, to have the corner of Fairfield Road and Arnold Avenue rezoned from a two-family area to a limited commercial zone, was rejected. Dr. Wallace told aldermen he wanted to build a private medical office building on the corner. It would be of residential appearance, and for his sole use.

"We have spot zoned before and been sorry after," said Ald. Lily Wilson, admitting that the doctor's plans would undoubtedly improve the corner. What was at stake, she said, was the whole principle of spot zoning.

Ald. Millard Mooney agreed.

Scares Ohio
CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—The possession of a Molotov cocktail in Cincinnati now is an offence carrying a maximum penalty of six months in jail, or a $500 fine or both.

City council adopted an ordinance Wednesday banning the home-made fire bombs. The measure was proposed after the Los Angeles riot.

I have been yanking away about bulbs now for the last several days; bulbs in all their incredible shapes, sizes, colors—and prices. I am gathering an impression from remarks in my mail, though, that the price structure on bulbs is a bit puzzling to novice growers, for the prices vary so much, and at first sight, without much reason for such a wide spread.

Actually, bulb prices are probably more organized and systematic than almost any other class of plant material. The few large, established organizations tend to maintain rigid, uniform standards of quality, and prices are closely related to these standards, together with the good old law of supply and demand.

If any particular bulb is in short supply, you have to pay more for it. This applies to all novelties and, in general, the newer they are, the more they cost. This is why one single bulb of the exquisite white daffodil Avelia will set you back $56, while the same amount of money would buy 350 bulbs of the golden King Alfred. I should point out, once again, that the highly expensive newcomers are not necessarily more beautiful than the cheaper old-timers—only rarer.

Nor is newness the only thing that makes some bulbs scarce. Excessive demand may have the same effect, and so will difficulty in propagation, and these two factors worked together for many years to keep up the price of yellow crocuses.

Everybody wanted the yellow kinds, yet the yellows are precisely the ones most difficult to increase rapidly. The difficulties have since been overcome, and the price of yellow crocus bulbs has dropped to the same level as the blues, whites, purples and mauves.

The biggest factor affecting the price of bulbs, though, is size. The bigger the bulb, the longer it has taken to grow, and the longer it has taken to grow, the more it costs. The spread in price between the largest and the smallest bulbs of the same variety can be very great indeed. As an example, in a gladiolus catalogue I have before me the No. 1 size bulb of the variety Green Ice sells for $28 per 100, while the No. 6 size of the same variety would cost only $6.50 per 100.

Size is of importance to the buyer for two reasons. Below a certain minimum—which will, of course, vary with the kind of bulb—it isn't likely to produce any flower at all the first year. Above this critical minimum, the flowers get bigger and better with the bulb size, or a really big bulb may produce more than one flower.

You can see this very clearly in some of the top grade daffodil bulbs in which several bulbs are held together like Siamese twins. Obviously, the commercial bulb grower has to get more money for these twin- and triple-headed monsters, for they take longer to grow and there are fewer available.

At the other end of the scale, small bulbs can be purchased at ridiculously low prices. Whether it pays to buy these little fellows depends a lot on how you wish to use them.

For potting up and growing indoors, only the biggest and best bulbs will give really satisfactory results. Outdoors, on rich, well-drained and well-tilled soil, an investment in small bulbs can be worthwhile, growing them on until they plump themselves up and are big enough to plant out in the ornamental beds.

On heavy or sticky soil, even the best bulbs deteriorate a bit every year instead of becoming bigger and better. On such soil, it is a sheer waste of money to plant undersize bulbs, for there is nothing you can do to plump them up to flowering size.

There have been no many lists of people who are chic and with it, chic and without it, in people, jet people, camp people, and pop people that I am forced to make my own list of those whom I believe are the most in, camp, chic, and meaningful of our time.

This year's most camp person is Eddie Camp, who has been the rage of the New York social season. Eddie first came to the attention of photographers when she walked into a formal dinner party in an evening dress.

Everyone at the party was shocked and wanted to know who she was. They discovered she was the protegee of Sandy Warknoll, the most "in" painter in New York. Warknoll paints portraits of children for money. He doesn't care what the children look like as long as there is enough dough in it.

Eddie goes everywhere with Warknoll and no party in New York is complete without the two of them, she in an evening dress and he in a tuxedo. They look very out of place in New York, but nobody seems to mind.

The most chic person is Mrs. Amanda Chic of Palm Beach and Key Largo. Mrs. Chic makes all her own clothes including her fur coats. She not only selects the pelts, but traps the animals herself. Although the mother of three, she is constantly on the go and has never missed an "April in Paris" ball or a Paris ballgame in April.

Mrs. Chic likes to be where the action is, but she says her life still revolves around her children, Samantha who is 36, Gregory who is 39, and Ricky who is going on 40.

The most "I'm" singer on our list is Walter In, whose recent record, The Best Loved Songs of Stephen Foster, is the biggest thing to hit the discotheques in years. Mr. In is a tenor and wears his hair short. His critics say the heart is just a pop, but even they agree that nobody can sing Old Black Joe the way he does.

When it comes to pop culture, the first name that comes to mind is George Pop who makes Campbell's soup cans. Pop even LONDON (NANA)—The Beatles have been the inventors of a new lingo, here and in America. The latest: "It's a bring down"—means picking a person's conceit; "Copping an attitude"—putting on an act; "It's dicy"—tricky. And have you noticed a change in their songs? More of a folk-rock sound. Jordan Christopher, with a new album, The Arthur Sound, was telling me there is also a change in the dancing to his Wild Ones. "The jerk is still popular, but couples now get up and dance to their own beat. It's more free." I didn't think it could get any freer.

Talking of groups, there are 800 in Liverpool alone, according to Lionel Bart who made an investigation when he was looking for a group for his Maggie May musical in 1961. In 1964, Mike Sturt, a student of Bart's, wrote incidentally, has a group called, The What For. In spite of all this, there is a tendency for singles again and couples rather than groups, like the very popular Sonny and Cher who give out with the new folk-rock sound. And while we wait with the record set, Frank Sinatra's album, The September of My Years, has the sound of a man who wants to settle down.

Ingrid Bergman, always a hit in England whether reviews are good or medium, was saying backstage at the Cambridge Theatre here where she is starring in A Month in the Country, that while she can act in five languages, Swedish, French, German, English and Italian, it is sometimes hard for her to think in English. She speaks Swedish mostly because her husband Lars Schmidt is Swedish. But they live in Paris and she has to go to Italy to see her children. There is talk that the Turgenev play will go to Broadway for a season.

Mrs. Michael Chaplin gazing at her year-old son Christian. "He'll never be an actor. If he ever wants to be, he'll get a quarrel from me." I have a hunch that the reason young Michael had second thoughts about the book on his family and himself, is the recent visit of his father and mother to London. There had been no contact for a long time. But this time there was a long conversation.

Sophia Loren signed for another two with Joe Levine. Golden Arrow and Once Upon A Time. Both with Mastroianni . . . And Ursula Andress will repeat next year with Marcello whom I hope to catch up with in Rome. His English has improved and we will converse in the language of Shakespeare and Keats—I hope.

Talking of Shakespeare, the Zeffirelli film version of Taming of the Shrew with Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton will be strictly untampered with—unlike the old Douglas Fairbanks-Mary Pickford film in which Shakespeare was given credit, diluted with, "additional dialogue by Sam Taylor." Who he?

Michael Caine will not have any free time for the rest of the year because after The Wrong Box, he pops immediately into Funeral In Berlin, by Len Deighton who authored The Ipcress File. And there will be more for Mike from Deighton's typewriter.

About a year ago, Mia Farrow, among others, auditioned for The Knack at The Establishment in New York. Just think, if she had been chosen there would have been no Frank Sinatra in her life. Mia met Frankie at Fox after she returned, discouraged from New York.

George Hamilton in Europe to co-star with Claudine Auger in The Helsters, stopped off in Paris for a visit with Jeanne Moreau, with whom he made Viva Maria in Mexico. No romance. Strictly friendship.

Dean Martin paid a trio, composed of son Dino, Desi Junior and Billy, $3,500 to appear on his NBC-TV show. He says they are the only kids in Beverly Hills with chauffeur-driven skate boards.

One of the most troublesome paradoxes of our time is that just as we are becoming gravely concerned about the population explosion, medical science is finding new ways to keep more people alive longer.

On the one hand, we are conquering old diseases and lowering the infant mortality rate drastically; on the other, we are beginning to realize that even a two per cent annual increase in world population per year will leave us with standing room only by the 21st century.

But the problem of space is only one of many raised by recent medical advances. Be asks us to consider the ethical problem that will be pos-

Progress in this area, the conference was told, is now so rapid that organ replacement, on a routine basis, may be possible within the next 10 to 15 years. Even an artificial heart is not out of the question for our children's time.

Senators Snort Over Car Pact

We Wouldn't Dare!

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States Senate Thursday approved the auto-production agreement with Canada but only after narrow defeats to two moves to delay it.

The vote was 54 to 18 in favor of the agreement signed last January by Prime Minister Pearson and President Johnson. Amendments to put off implementing the agreement were defeated by margins of 43 to 32 and 40 to 34.

The bill now goes back to the House of Representatives, which passed it earlier, for consideration of amendments attached by the Senate. If the House balks at the changes, the bill will go to a committee for an attempt at evolving a compromise.

The margin of resistance to the bill, which had been opposed mainly by three Democratic senators, was a surprise to the administration. President Johnson had made the measure a "must pass" item.

Earlier, Democratic Senator Abraham Ribicoff said Canada "would not dare enter a trade war with the United States."

"Canada needs the U.S. a lot more than the U.S. needs Canada in trade," the Democratic senator said in resuming opposition to the proposed Canada-U.S. auto agreement. "I think the state department takes us for a bunch of chumps—I'll put it as bluntly as that." Ribicoff told the Senate in the third day of debate on the agreement. He said it weakens the U.S. position in tariff-cutting talks at Geneva and invites more trade restrictions.

He was replying to a standard argument put by the U.S. government in supporting the auto pact—that it

U.S. Beefs Up Viet War Reserve Army

WASHINGTON (UPI)—U.S. Defence Secretary McNamara has announced a plan to bring 145,000 National Guardsmen and civilian reservists to a state of readiness to fight in Viet Nam if their units are called up.

To do so, he dissolved 751 army reserve units containing 55,000 men. The secretary has contended in the past that some reserve units are obsolete, unneeded and wasteful, and that their men should be available where they are needed.

McNamara said none of these units is required for "contingency war plans," and that trained personnel from them now can join high-priority outfits which are needed. Furthermore, their dissolution will reduce the recruit training load on army camps which now are overburdened with the huge Viet Nam buildup.

In effect, what McNamara did was to push ahead with a plan which Congress refused to approve under his proposed merger of the reserves and the National Guard.

Road Deaths Evaporate During Beer Drought

SEATTLE (AP)—Highways Minister Gaglardi said Thursday British Columbia's beer shortage is making highways safer.

"There was but one traffic fatality during our recent Labor Day holiday when all usual statistics pointed to at least nine or 10 deaths," Mr. Gaglardi said in an interview.

He told reporters he has been an advocate of stiffer penalties for drinking drivers. He was here to address a public works association luncheon.

Car Price Gap Is Closing

OTTAWA (CP) — The gap between U.S. and Canadian automobile prices should be closed when 1968 models are in dealers' showrooms, Industry Minister Drury said Thursday.

But the gap he spoke of, he said, is not the gap in retail prices. It is the gap in the price of automobiles as they come off the assembly lines in car plants.

This amounts to something less than $150 in the standard models of most popular-priced autos, he said.

Mr. Drury, asked about comments by politicians in Canada and the United States in the automobile plan had sharp replies to Conservative Leader Diefenbaker. He said last week in Montreal if he is elected, his government would see Canadian car prices are cut to the American level.

This Mr. Drury said, could only be done by price control, which would mean wage and corporation profits controls—and that was socialistic—or by removing Canadian tariffs on all U.S. imports, and that would be ruinous to the Canadian industry.

Attorney Raps Acquittal

'Only the Beginning' In Rights Death Case

HAYNEVILLE, Ala. (UPI)—An all-white jury acquitted a special deputy of a civil rights slaying Thursday but Alabama's outraged attorney-general said he isn't through with the case yet.

The official, Richmond Flowers, said the acquittal of 52-year-old Tom Coleman represented the "democratic process going down the drain of irrationality, bigotry and improper enforcement of the law."

CHICAGO (UPI)—A priest who was wounded in an Alabama civil rights campaign says the acquittal of the man accused of shooting him and killing a companion does not "square with the facts of the case."

The Rev. Richard Morrisroe issued a statement through a friend from his bed in Oak Park Hospital. "It is hard for him to understand why the court did not grant a continuance so he could testify," said the Rev. Thomas McDonough, a friend.

Coleman was charged with first-degree manslaughter in the Aug. 20 shotgun slaying of Jonathan Daniels, 26, a white Episcopal seminary student from Keene, N.H.

HALT COURT
The American Civil Liberties Union in Washington asked Supreme Court Justice Hugo Black to halt all court proceedings in Lowndes County, where Coleman was tried, pending a hearing on ACLU charges that Negroes and women are excluded from the county's juries.

The nation's attorney-general, Nicholas Katzenbach, commented that such verdicts "are the price you have to pay for the jury system."

HONG KONG (Reuters)—Communist China announced Thursday it has ordered its artillery forces to suspend its shelling on odd days of the Chinese Nationalist offshore islands of Quemoy, Taitan and Erhshan on Oct. 1 and 3. This is to allow people on the islands to celebrate the 18th anniversary of the founding of the Chinese Communist Republic, the New China News Agency reported.

Bishops Urge Papal Ruling In Birth Control Controversy

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—Roman Catholic leaders have urged Pope Paul VI to settle a split in the Ecumenical Council by ruling on the controversial problems on birth control before the assembly ends.

"We must have an answer before we return to our people," Angelo Cardinal Rissi, Archbishop of Sao Paulo, Brazil, said Thursday. The council has as yet no closing date.

Ignoring the really big problem. He warned that if the council hatingly broaches this matter before the Pontiff speaks out "the faithful will think they have been defrauded." He said it was unwise for the church to claim infallibility if it cannot even make up its mind on a matter of morals and faith.

LIBERAL VIEWS

In an eloquent defence of the dignity of conjugal love, Bishop Remi de Roo of Victoria went as far as any speaker has dared on the council floor in urging a new look in the church's views. "Spouses must never abstain from constant development of authentic conjugal love and its practice," he said. "Arbitrary

Truce Terms Ignored

NEW DELHI (AP) — India and Pakistan accused each other again Thursday of violating the week-old United Nations ceasefire along the frontier of the Indian state of Rajasthan.

The Indian defence ministry charged 500 Pakistani desert rangers attacked across the frontier and they were being reinforced.

A Pakistani government broadcast said India threw two battalions against a Pakistani post in Rajasthan Thursday and the fighting was continuing. It said heavy casualties were inflicted on the attackers.

Rajasthan is a wild desert area at the southern section of the India-Pakistan border. Indian officials termed the situation serious.

Action Needed For Education

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—The federal government must do more for education, Prime Minister Pearson said Thursday night.

He told a Liberal rally here that the present federal aid of $400,000,000 a year to education "is not going to be enough."

"Every boy and girl must be given access to every type of education as far as he or she can go," the prime minister said.

"This must be done." The federal government would have to discuss the matter with the provinces, which have the primary responsibility for education. "We're going to have to do more to fit young people to take their place in the world," Mr. Pearson said.

A few minutes after his 40-minute speech, he met a delegation of voting-age students from Memorial University here concerning the Nov. 8 federal election in which many students will be unable to vote because they have not been in university residence long enough this year to qualify. They will have to return to their home towns if they want to vote.

Coroner Scores Inefficiency

By PETER TAYLOR
NANAIMO — Coroner Russ Inkster Thursday called for an investigation into what he called "inefficiency" in the Motor Vehicle Branch in Victoria.

The charge followed a Wednesday night inquest at which evidence showed the branch issued a licence suspension on a driver March 11, and did not follow it up until the day of the inquest into the driver's death this week.

"How can someone let seven months go by without asking police to pick up the licence? I don't know!" said the coroner.

He said "this justifies some sort of investigation."

The coroner said, "I'm quite sure the attorney-general's department would not condone anything like this, because they don't operate that way."

"If this has happened here in Nanaimo, I wonder in how many other B.C. centres it has happened."

The inquest was held into the death of Roy Robert Humphreys, 27, of Long Lake Motel.

The jury found the victim died in a head-on smash three miles north of Nanaimo.

During the course of police evidence it was learned the

Motor Vehicle Branch had issued a notice of suspension on March 11.

Humphreys died Sept. 5, and the branch was notified of his death 10 days later, but on the day of the inquest Nanaimo RCMP received a letter from the principal clerk in the driver's improvement division, asking the police to serve a second notice on the dead man.

The March 11 suspension was to be in effect until he proved financial responsibility for a previous accident.

The Sept. 28 letter stated: "We have no conclusive proof that this letter (March 11) was delivered, and due to this we are unable to issue a certification of suspension."

"In order that we may amend our files accordingly, we would appreciate your co-operation in delivering the

suspension of Roy Robert Humphreys."

In his evidence, Barry Galsky, Koksilah, said he saw Humphreys coming towards him on his side of the road.

He started to steer towards the centre line, but Humphreys did the same thing. He had been stopped for two seconds before Humphreys finally hit him head-on, he said.

Medical evidence showed the victim had a blood alcohol content of .24, well above the level where impairment is considered to begin.

Humphreys had been involved in an accident two years ago two miles south of where he had met his death. Since 1963 he had been found guilty of going through a stop sign twice and of careless driving.

A case is presently being heard in civil court against the traffic victims indemnity fund, as a result of Humphreys' first accident.

Leniency Helps Bad Drivers Make Comeback

LAKE COWICHAN — Motor Vehicles Branch Superintendent Ray Hadfield said the branch often shows "leniency" to drivers who might otherwise lose their licences.

He said licences are often returned to drivers who need to drive for employment.

"We are getting some good results from this method," he said.

"Our actions are subject to appeals in court, and thus tend to be a whole approach."

Mr. Hadfield commented "The rights of people who drive must be preserved. But the rights of other people, the innocent people on the highways, must be given equal consideration."

Addressing Cowichan Lake District Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Hadfield said "we must steer a road between these two groups of people."

Mr. Hadfield stated "our job causes great strain and problems within the branch to keep pace and control the situation, and to regulate parts of the automotive industry."

"For the past four or five years we have also been licensing and bonding in the motor vehicle industry, and in the future we hope to control the regulating of driving schools."

Speaking on the motor vehicle accident situation, Mr. Hadfield said "I wish it was as easy to tackle as the other situations in the department. On one hand we are dealing with cars, trucks and machinery; on the other side we are dealing with people, their different habits and personalities."

Compulsory Checks

Mr. Hadfield explained the branch's use of the mobile inspection unit which has been travelling through the province since February. "We are able to examine 500 to 550 vehicles per week on a voluntary basis."

"Compulsory inspection would be a very nice thing, but it would be very costly. In the meantime, we must get people interested in the problems that exist."

Mr. Hadfield said the branch not only issues licences, but also has the authority to take away licences from people who show irresponsibility.

He said "this is a very awesome thing; being able to drive lawfully is a vital part of life today. People need their licence for employment. The suspension of their driver's licence could mean the loss of work."

Mr. Hadfield said "The time will come when we will have better ways of determining a person's right to use a car after drinking alcoholic beverages. We will set a level of blood alcohol content, above which it will be unlawful to drive a motor vehicle."

He said the number of convictions of impaired drivers has increased in the province during the past few years.

"There have been 5,000 convictions of impaired driving this year, and one-third of these are repeat offenders who didn't learn a thing the first time."

Mr. Hadfield said "Young people watch adults ignoring stop signs. They notice a disregard for traffic laws when they are riding with adults. The young people learn to drive, but they are not taught the basic responsibility to others on the road."

Group Therapy Plan

In the future the Motor Vehicles Branch will require that all potential drivers be taught to drive. "This does not mean just the 16 and 17-year-olds, this means everybody... no training, no licence."

He said surveys of students show those who have taken driver training have better skill and fewer accidents.

He said the Motor Vehicles Branch hopes to develop clinics to deal with people who are problem drivers.

"Group therapy has worked in the past, and if poor drivers were required to participate in an improvement program, they would soon admit they don't know it all in driving."

Sacred Treasurer Ready To Carry Party Colors

PORT ALBERNI—Evidence of new solidarity in the Social Credit Association in the Alberni Valley was shown Thursday as newly-elected president Roy Larsen announced the name of the first nominee for the federal election.

He is Jean M. Gagnon, a public accountant, who lives at Taylor Arm at Sprout Lake.

Mr. Gagnon, who has lived 15 years in this area, is also the treasurer of the new executive, and a former hotel operator.

Nomination convention for the Socreds will be held Saturday at Bowser.

Alberni Children Not Cramped

Four-to-a-Seat Bus Engineered That Way

By MARY TAYLOR

PORT ALBERNI—Parents who have been jolted by their elementary school children coming home and announcing they now sit four-to-a-seat on the school bus, need not be alarmed.

The new bus purchased by the school board last year and the additional bus which will be delivered in a few weeks, are both engineered that way.

The latest vehicles are designed specifically for use of school children, and carry 73 to a load.

Aisles are not as wide as on ordinary city buses, and the elementary school children sit four-to-a-seat on one side of the aisle, two-to-a-seat on the other.

High school students fit in three on one side, two on the other.

The load level varies considerably from day to day depending on the weather and other factors.

Shift work makes a difference to the load, since fathers often drive youngsters to school on afternoon shift, but the children use the bus when dad's shift changes to days.

To counteract the uneven load problem, buses are frequently shifted from one route to another, depending on capacity, and in some cases may even be re-routed to solve the problem.

Superintendent W. H. Gurney said transportation supervisor C. F. Abrahamson has a constant eye on the count of children carried on each bus, and the arrival of the new bus authorized in August by the Port Alberni city council will greatly ease his bus-juggling burdens.

Activities Suspended, PTA Apathy Rampant

COBBLE HILL — The Parent-Teacher Association of George Bonner Junior High School has suspended operation for the term.

The decision to discontinue the association was made by members at Wednesday night's meeting, when it was found no one was willing to take office this term.

Last year's president R. C. Muirhead said he could not continue as head of the PTA as his position as manager of the Bamberton Cement plant kept him too busy.

Other parents who held office last year do not have students in the school this year, and their interests will be claimed by associations in other schools.

Secretary Mrs. Michael Jurloff said parents are not showing the same interest as in previous years.

She stated "The PTA on the secondary level does not seem to be needed as much today as on the elementary level."

Memorial Award To Honor Pilot

CAMPBELL RIVER—A memorial fund has been started by friends of the late Glyn Fitzgerald, popular helicopter pilot killed in a crash Sept. 19.

Mr. Fitzgerald, base manager here for Okanagan Helicopters, was active in community work, sports, and was a Sunday school teacher.

The fund will go for an award, probably to a Campbell River high school student who shows all-round scholastic, athletic and citizenship qualities.

Mr. Fitzgerald was killed taking freight to Zeballos iron mines.

According to eye-witnesses at the mine, the engine apparently failed at about 300 feet, and as the craft dropped the rotor struck a tree, flipping the helicopter.

Car Misses Corner Smash Crunches Ribs

DUNCAN — Two men were injured when a car was smashed in an accident on the Crofton Road at 6 p.m. Thursday.

The 1965 sports car apparently missed a corner and flipped over. It was a total wreck.

The driver was identified as James David Turner, Lakes Road, Duncan; passenger was Ronald James Bonar, Salt Spring Island.

Both men are in "satisfactory condition in hospital. Bonar suffered broken ribs and a broken collarbone. Turner received face lacerations and concussion.

Fire Protection Turned Over

Move 'Shocks' Civic Officials

CAMPBELL RIVER — North Campbell River municipal officials say they are "shocked" over this week's move by Campbell River Fire Protection District trustees, to turn over all equipment and assets of the protection district to Campbell River district municipality.

North Campbell River, while a part of the protection district, is not within the district municipality.

Harold Duncan, chairman of North Campbell River, and Mrs. Barbara Finch, secretary, said they were "shocked and dismayed at this move."

The council of the district municipality voted unanimously to take over operations, administration assets and liabilities of the protection district.

Mr. Duncan said the protection district trustees had promised at their annual meeting last spring that a public meeting would be held to spell out details of any take-over.

NO PUBLIC MEETING

Apparently while a number of meetings have been held between the district municipality and the trustees, the public meeting has not been held.

Final details have not been worked out, and a study is now being made to determine the equity of outside areas in the present fire protection district.

MILL-RATE BASIS

These areas are North Campbell River, Quinsam, and the southern area of Willow Point. None are in the district municipality.

The municipality would operate all fire-fighting facilities and charge the outside areas on a mill-rate basis for fire-protection services.

The costs would be collected for the municipality by the municipal affairs department.

SUGGESTIONS

The department would negotiate a contract between the municipality and the outside areas. This follows suggestions on procedure made by the department.

The arrangement would also fulfill a statement made by Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell last December, that none of the areas would be left without fire protection.

Campbell River

District Plans Cause Alarm Within Council

CAMPBELL RIVER — The council of this district municipality is in sharp disagreement with the municipal affairs department over the possibility of forming a large regional district, taking in an area up to Gold River.

Council gave cool reception to a proposal by the department that a district be formed before there is a function for such a district.

"They are pushing this thing at us too fast," said Coun. John Stephen.

The department proposed a regional district covering Campbell River area, Gold River, Zeballos, and nearby districts.

The department said the district could be set up without any definite function. "If after a reasonable time the regional board is unable to recommend any function to be carried out, the regional district will be discontinued."

But councillors didn't like it.

"This is the thin edge of the wedge," charged Coun. Stephen. "I can't see why we need to incorporate before studying the matter."

Reeve Jack Lee said "It would be going too far to form the regional district before a study is made," he said.

Campbell River village and part of Willow Point Water District became a district municipality last April, with a small majority, while Quinsam, Oyster Bay and North Campbell River voted against coming in.

Bulk Deliveries Studied

Lighthouses Pose Big Fuel Problem

A move to supply Vancouver Island lighthouses with commercially delivered bulk fuel oil will be studied by government officials during a four-day round-the-island helicopter trip.

The trip by department of transport and public works officials, will determine what additional facilities will be needed to pump oil from commercial tankers into storage tanks in the district's lighthouses, practically all of which are in exposed areas.

Last year the department experimented with bulk loading, using the icebreaker Camshell as the tanker and a work barge which carried the oil ashore and pumped it into storage tanks.

78,000 GALLONS

Better than 70,000 gallons of diesel oil was discharged at 22 of the district's lighthouses.

Originally, the oil, which is used by the huge diesel motors that blow foghorns and keep the light going, had to be unloaded by hand in 40-gallon barrels and landed in work boats.

Lighthouse superintendent Capt. William Exley estimated the conversion from barrel to bulk would result in a saving of 30 cents a gallon, and commercial bulk delivery would result in greater additional savings.

The department eventually hopes to have to make only one delivery a year, and further in the future, one delivery every 18 months.

In increasing bulk storage facilities at several lighthouses, the department has installed special easy-to-handle fibreglass tanks weighing only 1,000 pounds and holding 2,000 gallons of oil.

"After all, the second 13 should act as our backbone. Only when you have a trained, capable group of reserves can you hope to have an all-conquering team."

The members accepted a suggestion from team secretary Peter Clarke, that the matter of picking a second team captain be dealt with by the club executive committee at its next meeting.

Limeys Get Squeezed In Rugger Club Ploy

By JEAN RAIN

DUNCAN — Members of the Duncan Rugby Club are determined to get rid of the stigma of being "a sporting body monopolized and controlled by a bunch of damned Limeys."

The words are those of Tony Carr, a schoolmaster at Brentwood College, who decided "It is high time to bring in a few changes and alter that image immediately."

He said he does not like the words snobbish Englishmen, and neither do any of the other Anglo members, but without a doubt this is the title which many hang around the club's neck.

Mr. Carr proposed when a second team is formed within the next few weeks, every effort be made to find a captain who was "born and raised in Canada."

He said "we should try and get as many Canadians as possible into the club to show that we are not an exclusive Englishmen's organization. Our doors are open to all."

With regard to the second team, Mr. Carr said it should not contain a "shower of incompetents" who just want a game, "but should be comprised of youngsters who are eager to play and who hope to graduate into the senior side at the first opportunity."

After all, the second 13 should act as our backbone. Only when you have a trained, capable group of reserves can you hope to have an all-conquering team."

The members accepted a suggestion from team secretary Peter Clarke, that the matter of picking a second team captain be dealt with by the club executive committee at its next meeting.

In the future, Teen Town members wanted to erect a building of their own which could also be used by other local organizations.

Expropriation?

Board Needs Land

NANAIMO—School Board chairman William Lerch said Thursday the board may expropriate 7.3 acres of former CIL property in the Departure Bay area.

The land is owned by Greater Nanaimo Investment Corporation, with Nanaimo Realty as agent.

Mr. Lerch said the board has offered $25,000 for the property, and the company wants $60,000.

"If we don't get the land, every child in that area will have to go to class in shifts, the chairman told the Parent Teacher Council in a meeting at the high school.

His talk included these subjects:

● The board's 3,000,000 referendum going to the voters in December . . . "This will add 115 mills to the tax bill, but as assessments rise, this will be out to less than one mill."

● Grade 13, last year 33 students, this year 80 . . . "the reason is the increase in fees by universities, and their demand for a 60 per cent average to enter. It shows the need for a regional college."

LAKE COWICHAN—Entertainment at the recent meeting of the Cowichan Lake Kinettes was a dress designing contest using paper and scissors.

The winner was Mrs. Arlene Kotscherowski, who dressed her model Mrs. Ethel Johnson in a wedding gown of black and white newspaper.

The Kinettes will make and sell Christmas wreaths again this year, and co-chairman of the committee are Mrs. Jean St. Dennis and Mrs. Marg MacQuarrie.

Saturday to 6:00 a.m. Monday. Mr. Kroffat said for six weeks this summer he operated the pool hall on Sundays, with the co-operation of the RCMP.

TRIAL BASIS

He said Sgt. Tom Wilde authorized the opening on a trial basis.

However, at the beginning of September, Sgt. Wilde was transferred, and RCMP suggested Mr. Kroffat discontinue the Sunday opening until after he had talked to members of council.

Mr. Kroffat said the trial opening was successful.

HOTRODDERS

"It was an asset financially to myself, but it was also an asset to the city."

"I read an article recently where local residents felt that something had to be done about Sunday hotrodders in the city."

"I thought the opening of my establishment on Sundays might help in a small way. I feel it has, during the trial period."

AMEND BYLAW

He said parents have told him they "want to know where their children are."

"If the city can provide this recreation for the young people on Sundays then the parents will know where they are and what they are doing."

Mayor Jack Dohson pointed out the approval of council will mean amending the existing bylaw.

He said "We will certainly consider the matter. There is a lot to be said for providing recreation for young people."

Lines Gets New Post

DUNCAN — Local lawyer Thomas H. Lines has been appointed a coroner of the province, through an order in council.

Sign Almost Done

LAKE COWICHAN — The large regional direction sign at the entrance to the village has almost been completed.

Chamber secretary Harold Cooper reported to members "If the chamber had bought all the materials for the 16-foot sign, and paid out wages for all the work hours involved in constructing the sign, the bill would have come close to $5,000."

The chamber has actually spent only $1,000. The donation of materials from various logging firms and volunteer labor from local organizations, has enabled the chamber to complete the project this year.

SMALL BUILDING

Chamber President Allan Anderson said next year the chamber hopes to erect a small building on the site, from which brochures and information will be given out to tourists.

Director Gordon Loutet pointed out Halloween is approaching and he said, "although I don't believe it will happen, I would hate to see anything done to the sign by vandals."

SIGN GUARD

His suggestion that the chamber have someone on duty that night at the sign was referred to the executive committee for action.

Chamber members learned district Boy Scouts association is without a gavel for its meetings, and the executive recommended the chamber obtain one for the scouts.

A suggestion that the chamber contribute its old gavel was rejected, and the gavel will be kept as a memento.

This year the chamber received a new gavel when the organization won the Chamber of the Year award at the B.C. convention.

Chamber members said they wished they had had a tape recorder at a recent meeting with J. W. Morris, superintendent of highways.

PROGRESS REPORT

The chamber requested a progress report from Mr. Morris on the straightening of a curve at Paldi Corner on Cowichan Lake Road.

It was the chamber's understanding that the curve would be straightened by the latter part of June, and the stretch of road re-paved by the fall.

In reply to the chamber, Mr. Morris said his department has fulfilled all previous agreements: Repaving of South Shore and North Shore Roads through Lake Cowichan village, and the re-shouldering and patching of section of the Lake Cowichan Road.

Mr. Morris said the Paldi Corner is "still under consideration," and the project is "being reviewed by the department."

Senators Snort Over Car Pact

We Wouldn't Dare!

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States Senate Thursday approved the auto-production agreement with Canada but only after narrow defeats to two moves to delay it.

The vote was 54 to 18 in favor of the agreement signed last January by Prime Minister Pearson and President Johnson. Amendments to put off implementing the agreement were defeated by margins of 43 to 22 and 40 to 34.

The bill now goes back to the House of Representatives, which passed it earlier, for consideration of amendments attached by the Senate. If the House balks at the changes, the bill will go to a committee for an attempt at evolving a compromise.

The margin of resistance to the bill, which had been opposed mainly by three Democratic senators, was a surprise to the administration. President Johnson had made the measure a "must pass" item.

Earlier, Democratic Senator Abraham Ribicoff said Canada "would not dare enter a trade war with the United States."

"Canada needs the U.S. a lot more than the U.S. needs Canada in trade," the Democratic senator said in resuming opposition to the proposed Canada-U.S. auto agreement. "I think the state department takes us for a bunch of chumps—I'll put it as bluntly as that." Ribicoff told the Senate in the third day of debate on the agreement. He said it weakens the U.S. position in tariff-cutting talks at Geneva and invites more trade restrictions.

He was replying to a standard argument put by the U.S. government in supporting the auto pact—that it

20 Generals Arrested

ANTI-SUKARNO PLOT NIPPED

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (Reuters) — Indonesia's government radio claimed today that an attempted coup against President Sukarno by Indonesian military leaders and agents of the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency had been smashed.

Malaysian government sources quoted the radio as saying that the coup—due to take place before Indonesian Armed Forces Day next Tuesday—had been foiled by the commander of the presidential guard, Lt.-Col. Untung.

A number of generals—some sources said about 20—had been arrested. President Sukarno was safe and a revolutionary council had taken over control in Jakarta and provincial capitals throughout the country.

Sukarno was seriously ill in the first week of August this year.

The broadcast continued: "Their hope that President Sukarno would die of his illness did not materialize. Therefore, in order to attain its goal, the Council of Generals had planned to conduct a power exhibition on Armed Forces Day, October this year, by sending to Jakarta troops from East, Central and West Java."

The broadcast said to prevent this "counter-revolutionary coup," Lt.-Col. Untung, commander of a battalion of the presidential bodyguard, launched the operation against the generals Thursday.

Car Price Gap Is Closing

OTTAWA (UPI) — The gap between U.S. and Canadian automobile prices should be closed when 1968 models are in dealers' showrooms, Industry Minister Drury said Thursday.

But the gap he spoke of, he said, is not the gap in retail prices. It is the gap in the price of automobiles as they come off the assembly lines in car plants.

This amounts to something less than $150 in the standard models of most popular-priced autos, he said.

Mr. Drury, asked about comments by politicians in Canada and the United States in the automobile plan had sharp replies to Conservative Leader Diefenbaker. He said last week in Montreal if he is elected, his government would see Canadian car prices are cut to the American levels.

This Mr. Drury said, could only be done by price control, which would mean wage and corporation profits controls—and that was socialistic—or by removing Canadian tariffs on all U.S. imports, and that would be ruinous to the Canadian industry.

'Only the Beginning' In Rights Death Case

HAYNEVILLE, Ala. (UPI)—An all-white jury acquitted a special deputy of a civil rights slaying Thursday but Alabama's outraged attorney-general said he isn't through with the case yet.

The official, Richmond Flowers, said the acquittal of 52-year-old Tom Coleman represented the "democratic process going down the drain of irrationality, bigotry and improper enforcement of the law."

CHICAGO (UPI)—A priest who was wounded in an Alabama civil rights campaign says the acquittal of the man accused of shooting him and killing a companion does not "square with the facts of the case."

The Rev. Richard Morrisroe issued a statement through a friend from his bed in Oak Park Hospital.

"It is hard for him to understand why the court did not grant a continuance so he could testify," said the Rev. Thomas McDonough, a friend.

Chou En-lai:

China Needs More Time

PEKING (Reuters)—Premier Chou En-lai Thursday praised the achievements made by China under 15 years of Communist rule but said the country needs at least another 20 years to become "really strong."

Speaking at a huge banquet on the eve of the 16th anniversary of military victory in China's Communist revolution, Chou said the country is experiencing a new all-round upsurge in industrial and agricultural production, and looks forward to an "indefinitely bright future."

He quoted a cautious statement by Communist Party Chairman Mao Tse-tung saying China is somewhat stronger than before.

'NOT VERY STRONG'

"But it is still not very strong, and we need to build it for another 20 or 30 years at the least, in order to make it really strong," Chou said.

Mao, 71, did not make any public address Thursday night. Chou attacked the United States for "imperialist policies of aggression and war." And he hit out at Soviet "modern revisionists."

From China With Love

HONG KONG (Reuters)—Communist China announced Thursday it has ordered its artillery forces to suspend its shelling on odd days of the Chinese Nationalist offshore islands of Quemoy, Tatan and Erhshan on Oct. 1 and 3. This is to allow people on the islands to celebrate the 18th anniversary of the founding of the Chinese Communist Republic, the New China News Agency reported.

Ky Wants More

SAIGON (UPI)—Premier Nguyen Cao Ky says he will ask the United States for more combat troops to fight the Communists in South Viet Nam. American military manpower in South Viet Nam already totals more than 125,000, with another 11,000 due to arrive shortly.

NEW DELHI (AP) — India and Pakistan accused each other again Thursday of violating the week-old United Nations ceasefire along the frontier of the Indian state of Rajasthan.

The Indian defence ministry charged 500 Pakistani desert rangers attacked across the frontier and they were being reinforced.

A Pakistani government broadcast said India threw two battalions against a Pakistani post in Rajasthan Thursday and the fighting was continuing. It said heavy casualties were inflicted on the attackers.

Rajasthan is a wild desert area at the southern section of the India-Pakistan border. Indian officials termed the situation serious.

Action Needed For Education

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (UPI)—The federal government must do more for education, Prime Minister Pearson said Thursday night.

He told a Liberal rally here that the present federal aid of $400,000,000 a year to education "is not going to be enough."

"Every boy and girl must be given access to every type of education as far as he or she can go," the prime minister said.

"This must be done." The federal government would have to discuss the matter with the provinces, which have the primary responsibility for education.

"We're going to have to do more to fit young people to take their place in the world," Mr. Pearson said.

A few minutes after his 40-minute speech, he met a delegation of voting-age students from Memorial University here concerning the Nov. 8 federal election in which many students will be unable to vote because they have not been in university residence long enough this year to qualify. They will have to return to their home towns if they want to vote.

Coleman was charged with first-degree manslaughter in the Aug. 20 shotgun slaying of Jonathan Daniels, 26, a white Episcopal seminary student from Keene, N.H.

HALT COURT

The American Civil Liberties Union in Washington asked Supreme Court Justice Hugo Black to halt all court proceedings in Lowndes County, where Coleman was tried, pending a hearing on ACLU charges that Negroes and women are excluded from the county's juries. Integration leader Dr. Martin Luther King said the verdict made it "obviously clear that federal anti-lynch legislation must be passed."

The nation's attorney-general, Nicholas Katzenbach, commented that such verdicts "are the price you have to pay for the jury system."
